Beer up before weekend

British Columbia beer drinkers will have to pay more to wet their whistles during the holiday weekend.

Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen announced today that the retail price of bottled and canned beer will increase Saturday by 35 cents a dozen.

The price hike means a dozen bottles of beer will cost $4.60, plus a deposit of 60 cents.

The minister also said beer parlors will be permitted to increase the price of draught beer by a maximum of five cents a glass.

In hotels, pubs and cabarets, regular bottled beer will cost up to 15 cents more.

A quarter-litre of draught beer in B.C. now costs from 40 to 50 cents, the latter price being the norm in Greater Victoria.

The retail price hikes go hand-in-hand with increases in the wholesale price of beer that take effect Saturday. The government will pay $2.86½ a dozen, up from $2.64½ which was set in February, 1978.

Nielsen said the increases reflect general price increase granted to the three member companies of Pacific Brewers Distribution Ltd. — Labatts, Molsons and Carling-O'Keefe — to offset continuing cost escalation in labor, materials and distribution.

However, Prince George Breweries has indicated it will retain current prices on packaged and draught beer.

Doug Grant, vice-president of Labatt's said in an interview he was pleased with the price rise — which is basically what the brewers had requested last February — but wished it had come sooner to take advantage of the busy summer period.

More than five million cases of beer were sold in B.C. during July, the most ever in a single month.

Liquor Control board spokesman Ken Stewart said the new price schedule gives the maximum amount beer parlor operators may charge. Operators can set any minimum price they want, he said, but once they do so, the price must be fixed.

Dominica flattened by storm

BRIDGETOWN (AP) — Hurricane David devastated the tiny Caribbean island of Dominica when it swept through Wednesday, levelling virtually all the houses in Roseau, the island's capital, and killing at least four persons, Radio Barbados reported today.

Dominican Prime Minister Oliver Seraphin predicted the death toll would go "much higher," the radio said.

Government buildings, schools and churches on Dominica were opened to an estimated 60,000 refugees whose flimsy, wooden homes were flattened by hurricane winds, the radio reported.

The island has a population of 81,000, with about 18,000 in Roseau, one of the poorest cities in the central Caribbean.

Hurricane David, one of the most dangerous of the 20th century, roared south of the U.S. Virgin Islands today and battered the southern coast of Puerto Rico after cutting its path of destruction across Dominica and two other islands in the Antilles, Martinique and Guadeloupe.

Heavy seas and gale-force winds battered Puerto Rico's southern shore, flooding low-lying areas and forcing the evacuation of some seashore residents from Ponce, the island's second-largest city.

Forecasters predicted David would move on to Cabo Beata, the southernmost point of the Dominican Republic, by late afternoon.

"When they pass the Dominican Republic, that's the point where they usually turn north toward Cuba or the United States," a member of the U.S. Weather Service said. "Some go straight west toward Mexico and some just die out, but this one doesn't look like it's going to die out."

French officials said 12 persons were injured on Guadeloupe and 15 on Martinique when the storm struck Wednesday, and said there was considerable damage on the two French Caribbean islands.

It was not known if any of the estimated 450 Canadian tourists in Martinique were among the injured.

GNP slumps 2.8%

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's level of production fell during the second quarter of the year for the first time since mid-1976, government figures released today show.

In annual terms, the output of goods and services shrank by 2.8 per cent for the three-month period ending June 30, compared with the previous quarter.

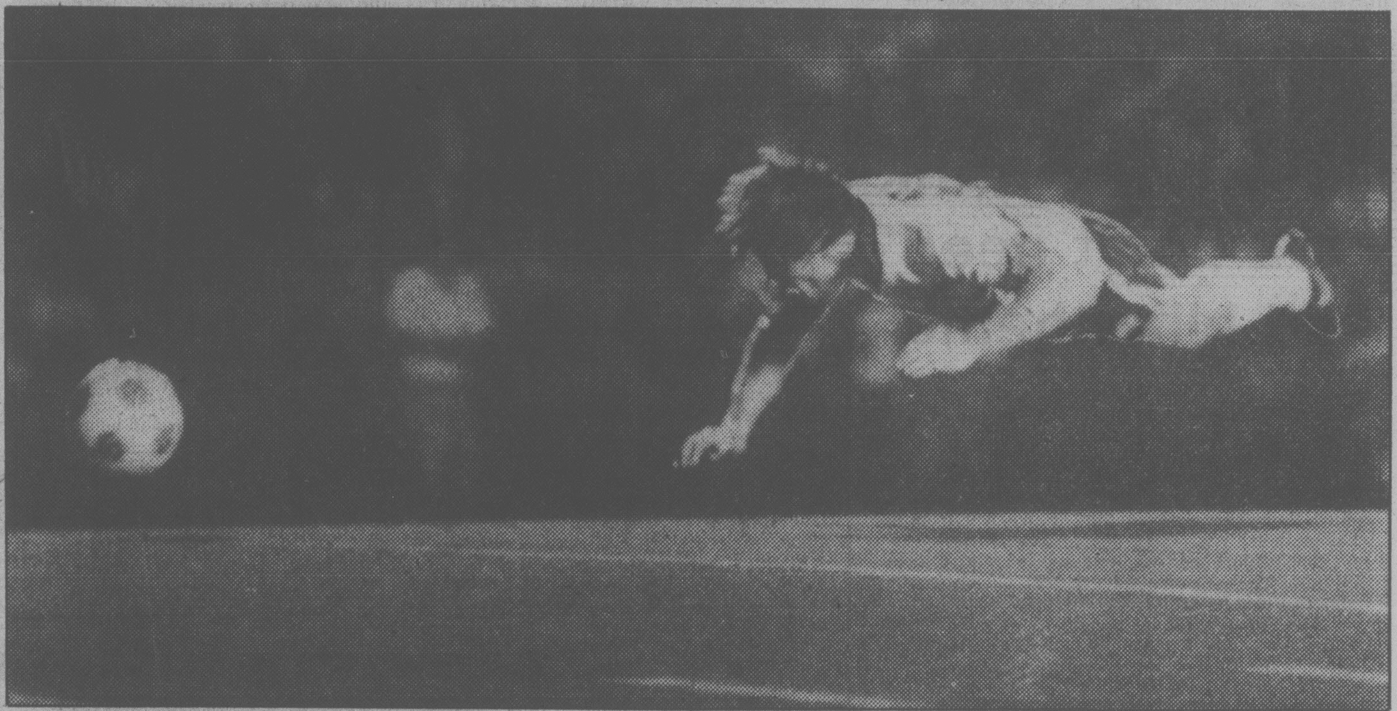
This indication of declining economic activity followed a surprisingly good first quarter, during which the economy grew at an annual rate of 6.8 per cent.

However, government officials warned that the first quarter growth rate was deceptively high and could not be maintained for the remainder of the year.

Statistics Canada said the value of all goods and services produced during the second quarter was $253.78 billion. The total for the previous quarter was $248.03 billion. Although the second quarter dollar figure was 2.3 per cent higher, the value of the output shrank by the time inflation was taken into account.

The federal agency said most of the decline resulted from a drop in export sales.

Consumers spent less than in the first quarter, business investment in machinery and equipment dropped and companies sold off some of the inventory of goods building up in their stockrooms and warehouses.



FLYING START: Winger Willie Johnston heads home a delicate pass from midfielder Alan Ball in the second half to score the first goal in Vancouver Whitecaps' 2-0 victory over New York Cosmos in Wednesday night's North American Soccer League semi-final playoff before 32,824 at Empire Stadium. Second game of the series is Saturday in New York and if Cosmos win that one, teams will play a one-half hour game immediately following to decide who advances to the final against San Diego Sockers or Tampa Bay Rowdies. Vancouver's second goal by Trevor Whymark in the 85th minute prompted a violent outburst by Cosmo coach Julio Mazzei against the officials. Mazzei argued that the score came on an offside play. Mountbatten duo charged

Times News Services

Two terrorist members of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army — one regarded as a time bomb expert — were charged today with the murder of Earl Louis Mountbatten of Burma. They showed no emotion but waved to friends and relatives as they were led away to jail cells to be held for a special court hearing Oct. 2.

The pair were identified as Francis McGirl, 24, and Thomas McMahon, 31. Police said they were both residents of the Eire-Ulster border area.

McMahon, a married man with one child, is an upholsterer, but security sources regard him as an acknowledged expert on time bombs. McGirl is an unmarried farmer.

Neither reacted as the charge was read that "on Aug. 27, in Donegal Bay in Mullaghmore, County Sligo, they murdered Lord Louis Mountbatten contrary to public law."

The two were flanked by policemen, and the suspects' lawyers were present but said nothing during the 4½-minute proceeding.

McGirl and McMahon were picked up Monday morning driving toward Dublin from the west of Ireland shortly before a powerful bomb ripped apart Mountbatten's fishing boat in Donegal Bay, on the northwest coast. Police sources said the two men had traces of nitroglycerine and sea water in their clothing.

A Royal Air Force jet was scheduled to fly the bodies of Mountbatten, 79, his 14-year-old grandson, Nicholas, and the Dowager Lady Brabourne home to England late Thursday.

Meanwhile, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, donning a camouflage flak jacket and a military beret, helicoptered into the heart of Northern Ireland's "bandit country" Wednesday in a show of defiance to the Irish Republican Army which considers the border region its own.

Despite the renewed security clampdown, Mrs. Thatcher spent 15 minutes walking through Belfast's crowded main shopping center, mobbed and applauded by startled shoppers.

Then putting on a military flak jacket and a beret of the Ulster Defence Regiment militia — but still clutching her handbag — Mrs. Thatcher boarded a military helicopter and flew to Crossmaglen, capital of the south Armagh region the IRA largely controls near the Irish republic border.

New tuna arrests

The federal fisheries department have seized two more U.S. fishing boats in an ongoing jurisdictional battle over albacore tuna.

The latest seizures brought to 10 the number of American boats seized for suspected violations of Canada's 200-mile fishing limit.

The two boats — the Proud Mary from San Diego, Calif. and the Santa Innes from Aberdeen, Wash. — are expected to arrive here about midnight tonight.

Oil port pollutes—study

SEATTLE (AP) — If an oil port is built at Port Angeles, or at Low Point, 65 kilometres west of Port Angeles, a spill of more than 10,000 barrels can be expected every 203 to 335 years, depending on the location, a federal study says.

An environmental study by the Bureau of Land Management also said any of three proposed oil ports in Washington and Alaska would degrade air quality.

The new federal document predicted emissions from the proposed Northern Tier Pipeline Co. terminal at Port Angeles would violate federal clean air standards for sulphur dioxide in Olympic National Park about 10 days a year.

The study also noted that the probability of a tanker fire or explosion in port was highest for the Northern Tier's proposed oil port at Port Angeles.

Oil spills, fires and explosions were listed as the "most significant impacts" associated with operating a major oil port along the Pacific Northwest coast, the study indicated.

The document, released this week, doesn't make any judgments about which of three projects proposed in Washington and Alaska would be the safest.

Tables in the study indicate each of the projects has its advantages and disadvantages.

The document said the probability of a major oil spill — more than 10,000 barrels — from a tanker at berth was highest for the Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Corp.'s proposed oil port at Low Point and the lowest for Foothills Oil Pipe Line's proposed port at Skagway, Alaska.

An oil spill greater than 10,000 barrels from a tanker at berth can be expected every 203 years at Low Point, every 335 years at Port Angeles and every 480 years at Skagway, it said.

The study said tankers in transit would be most likely to spill more than 10,000 barrels on their way to Skagway and least likely to cause a major spill on their way to Low Point.

Northern Tier, Trans Mountain and Foothills are three of four projects competing for federal approval to carry Alaskan and foreign crude oil from Northwest ports by pipeline to Midwest refineries.

The fourth proposal calls for an oil port at Kitimat.

$13M satellite program for search and rescue

The federal government has approved a $13 million four-year program to take part in development and evaluation of an experimental search and rescue satellite (SARSAT) system, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said today.

A fully operational SARSAT system would reduce notification time of a mishap to a maximum of three hours and narrow a search to within 20 kilometres. The system will help save lives and reduce loss of property, especially during marine incidents where salvage is often possible in the early stages of an emergency, McKinnon said.

Canada, the U.S. and France are now taking part in the initial stages of the experiment which involves equipping and launching three U.S. weather satellites with special repeaters and processors. The experimental SARSAT system will use existing emergency locator transmitters (ELTs) and emergency position-indicating radio beacons (EPIRBs) used in marine vessels.

The repeater-carrying satellites will monitor emergency transmissions from ELTs and EPIRBs while in orbit and relay the transmissions to a ground-based terminal which will determine the origin of the distress signal. This information will be relayed to the appropriate search and rescue co-ordination centres for action.

The Soviet Union is also co-operating in the SARSAT program and intends to develop its own system to be operate with the western one.

The 15-month demonstration and evaluation stage is scheduled to begin in 1982. If successful, the experiment is expected to lead to international acceptance and a world-wide SARSAT system.

Judge slams Bruins' rink brawl

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Judge James Shaw gave seven major junior hockey players a tongue-lashing Wednesday in provincial court for their shameful actions on the ice and also blamed management for inciting them to violence.

Shaw then granted conditional discharges to seven members of New Westminster Bruins who had pleaded guilty to assault charges after a one-sided brawl in a Western Hockey League game here March 22 against Portland Winter Hawks.

The judge also banned the seven from playing any league games at any level until Dec. 1 this year.

The sentence means that, if they obey the terms of their probation and commit no other offences before Dec. 1, they will not have criminal records.

Those charged were Boris Fistric and Richard Amann, both 18, Rob Roflick, 17, Bill Hobbins, Bruce Howes and John Paul Kelly, all 19, and Terry Kirham, 20.

Fistric and Kelly were both selected in the recent National Hockey League entry draft in the third round, Fistric by Detroit Red Wings and Kelly by Los Angeles Kings.

The judge called hockey management generally the "underlying authors of the brawl" which lasted 15 minutes with just four seconds left in the last regular-season meeting between the teams.

Shaw said he felt a prison sentence would be too harsh, but a fine would be likened to "a fee for this sort of reprehensible conduct."

"It must be brought home to all young men who play the aggressive brand of Canadian hockey that their aggression cannot go beyond the bounds of the rules of the sport and enter the area of the criminal law," said the judge.

"Each of these young men must shoulder the responsibility of their shameful actions. Yet the underlying authors of this brawl are not before the court.

"The entire system of hockey as it exists in North America today, from midget to NHL, the team owners, management and in particular the coaches, must bear a large share of the responsibility.

"These young men are manipulated — apparently happily — by the owners and coaches to do exactly what they are told.

Twin Otter crash kills nine at Frobisher Bay

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — All nine persons aboard a de Havilland Twin Otter were killed when the twin-engine turboprop crashed while landing at this Baffin Island community, RCMP said today.

Sgt. Murray Rennie said six of the fatalities were employees of Southeastern Commonwealth Drilling Ltd., heading south after spending 28 days working on an oil rig in the Davis Strait.

Also dead were the two pilots and a third passenger on the charter flight from Breevort Island, 210 kilometres east of here.

Identities were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Sgt. Rennie said the Twin Otter, owned by Bradley Air Services Ltd. of Carp, Ont., near Ottawa, was flying in rain, fog and winds gusting to 55 kilometres an hour as it approached the airport here.

It crashed on a hillside about 300 metres from the runway, bursting into flames on impact, Sgt. Rennie said.

He said it was "possible" the Twin Otter was approaching with the wind, rather than against it as is normal. Federal department of transport investigators were reported on their way to Frobisher to investigate.

Desmond Miklos, a local hotel owner, said firemen experienced difficulty trying to reach the wreckage on the steep hillside.

"It's a very inaccessible place," he said. "It's one hell of a climb up the hillside."

Miklos said that standing at the base of the hill and using binocularshe could see the fuselage had split open. Both wings were ripped off.

Miklos could remember only one other mishap involving the hill, "many years ago," when a twin-engine DC-3 lost an engine on takeoff and hit the foot of the slope.

Bradley president John Jamieson said in a telephone interview from company headquarters that the plane was attempting to land "within legal limits" despite the poor weather, and that the pilots were experienced in Arctic flying.

'Say no to drink you don't need' ad blitz theme

The B.C. Alcohol and Drug Commission has announced plans for a new, province-wide anti-liquor campaign, carrying as its theme the message: "You can say no to the drink you don't need."

Health Minister Bob McClelland said the idea is to make average drinkers stop and consider how much they drink and what kind of an effect drinking has on their lives.

The prime objective, he said, is to create a social climate where people do not feel uncomfortable about refusing a drink.

McClelland said he recently stopped drinking and knows only too well the pressures put on a non-drinker at a social gathering.

The $500,000 campaign, utilizing newspaper ads, commercials and posters, will begin on Monday.

Auto union picks GM for strikes

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union executive board has chosen General Motors Corp. as the union's strike target this year, a union source said today.

Loud cheering erupted in the meeting of the GM council, made up of officers from GM local unions, when the decision was announced there.

The union received offers from Ford and GM on Tuesday. The details were not disclosed. It is the first time since 1970 the union has received offers from the companies before choosing a strike target.

Radio op strike looms

Transport Canada has warned the shipping and aviation industry that airport and coast guard radio operators may walk out on Friday.

Meanwhile, radio operators refused all but emergency calls at a few airports in Manitoba and Saskatchewan Wednesday night with others joining the protest today, a transport department spokesman said today.

Ian Taylor, of the department's Winnipeg office, said the operators staged the protest for varying periods Wednesday night at Uranium City, Sask., and Winnipeg.

Others at Churchill and Pearl Harbor in Manitoba, and Swift Current, Yorkton, Regina and Prince Albert in Saskatchewan joined the protest today, the spokesman said.

Taylor said some operators will continue the protest until as late as Friday morning.

The flight service specialists — 1200 of them across the country — are planning a 24 hour study sesson Friday to protest the wage settlement handed down in a conciliation report and the conduct of negotiations by their own union, the Public Serviee Alliance of Canada (PSAC).

On Vancouver Island, airports at Naniamo, Campbell River, Comox, and Port Hardy and all coast guard stations would be affected.

A spokesman for radio operators said routine aircraft and ship communications, weather information and flight planning services may be seriously disrupted by the 24-hour study session.

Local MoT spokesman Stephen Rybak says scheduled flights may be cancelled at the small airports, but it is up to individual airlines and depends to a large extent on the weather.

Designated employees will stay on the job to maintain safety standards.

The PSAC has not authorised the walkout by members of its component the Union of Canadian Transport Employees.

The radio operators, without a contract since July, 1978, and in a legal strike position since Tuesday, are dissatisfied with a conciliation-board recommendation that would give them a $1,250 increase in annual wages as of Aug. 1, 1978, and $1,300 more as of Aug. 1 this year. Present annual salaries range from $13,328 to $15,500, with supervisors receiving $21,600.

Bullfighter to battle the palimony wizard

Elizabeth Velasco poses with son

Spain's most celebrated matador prepared to do battle against North America's most famous divorce lawyer today over his former girlfriend's demands for alimony, property rights and recognition of her illegitimate child. Attorney Marvin Mitchelson arrived Wednesday to press the claim of model Elizabeth Velasco, 27, who says she lived with Manuel "El Cordobes" Benitez from 1968 to 1972 and bore him a son. Mitchelson was to meet with the bullfighter's lawyer today to try to settle the case out of court.

Lois Faulkner, also known as "Grandma Marijuana" to the school children she sold and gave pot to, was sentenced Wednesday to a term of 60 days in county jail. Superior Court Judge Lawrence Storch, describing the 68-year-old woman's conduct as "appalling," said he limited the jail time to two months only because of her age and poor health. Miss Faulkner, who pleaded no contest July 31 to two counts of selling marijuana and one count of possession, told reporters outside the courtroom that she would not sell pot again but had no regrets. "I'm not sorry," she said. "Why? "Kids need marijuana to relax. It takes the kids off hard drugs." Miss Faulkner said she believed in the beneficial effects of marijuana and often brewed it in a tea to alleviate her high blood pressure and arthritis pains.

Explorer George Michanowsky, who translated the mysterious star-linked title emblazoned on King Tut's cartouche half a century after the Egyptian boy-king's tomb was discovered, is in show business now. Toronto's McLaughlin Planetarium will produce a show next month featuring his book, The Once and Future Star— now out in an updated Harper and Row paperback. Michanowsky's costar — Omar Sharif, will narrate.

Col. Harland Sanders — he of Kentucky Fried Chicken fame — turns 89 next month and the birthday bash he's throwing for his home town will be anything but a small, intimate affair. The colonel expects more than 10,000 at the Sept. 8 party in Louisville, Ky. — not to mention country-and-western star Barbara Mandrell, who'll sing Happy Birthday. And what do you feed 10,000 guests? Why, fried chicken, of course.

He was one of the last of the white hats — singing movie cowboys who sang and kissed their horses instead of their leading ladies. Gene Autry long since has turned to other endeavors — he's a millionaire and principal owner of the California Angels baseball team now — but he'll be back on the screen Oct. 13 in a guest appearance on television's Hee Haw. He'll appear with the Statler Brothers who have a special song for the occasion — one titled Mr. Autry.

And finally — What begins with "A," which is an answering service, and ends up more than 777,200 entries later with N. Zzherobrouskievskieskieea.? Give up? It's the new edition of the white pages of the Manhattan telephone directory of course. This year the whole project required 25,816 pounds of glue, 27.5 tons of ink and nearly 3,500 tons of paper, a company statement said. Each book weighs four pounds. The last listing in the new book had been next to last for a number of years. But Budd Zzzyp, from the upper East Side, apparently has moved.

Air Canada drops low fare plan

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada has decided to stop selling special low-fare tickets to the United States following the rejection of its fall seat sale program by the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board.

The federally-owned air line announced late Wednesday that it will no longer accept reservations for transborder seat sale tickets, which offered passengers travelling to the U.S. savings of 46 to 68 per cent on regular fares this fall.

Air Canada marketing director Ted Shetzen said the airline was distressed at having to cancel the program at this stage.

He said that the application had been submitted "in good faith" to the U.S. board and the airline had "every reason to believe the fares would be accepted."

The board accepted a similar Air Canada seat sale in the spring, he noted.

The fate of the 55,000 passengers who have already booked transborder flights under the fall seat sale is uncertain. The tickets were sold subject to government approval, Shetzen said, but the airline will ask the U.S. board to honor those tickets already sold.

"If all else fails, we'll be returning our customers' money," he said. "But for the moment we're asking our passengers to be patient and do nothing."

Any passengers wishing to cancel in the next few weeks will receive a full refund, Shetzen said.

The U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board decision contained "no objection to the seat sale on its merits," but rejected the application because of differences in policy between the two governments.

Two U.S. airlines, American and United, objected to the Air Canada proposal on the grounds that the Canadian government had not approved their applications for similar fares earlier this year.

The decision to halt the U.S. portion of the seat sale will not affect seat sale tickets for flights within Canada, Shetzen said.

Bandits tie N.Y. record

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bandits tied the city's all-time record for bank heists in one month Wednesday, but police arrested two suspects in the record-tying robbery.

Police who had staked out the Chemical Bank branch in Manhattan arrested two gunmen after the holdup there Wednesday afternoon.

The robbery was the 125th this month, tying the record set in July.

In 1978, there were 84 bank robberies in August. At the time, that was considered a massive number of heists, setting an all-time record for bank robberies per month in the city.

This year, however, New York has been hit by an unprecedented epidemic of bank robberies, so straining the resources of the FBI and city police the FBI announced it would only investigate armed heists in the future.

Bank robbery 124 occurred at about 12:30 p.m. Wednesday when an unidentified man walked into a branch of the New York Bank for Savings and demanded money. He escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Police said there have been 594 robberies so far in 1979 — only 38 less than occurred in all of 1978.

A foamy finale

RHEIN-MAIN AIR BASE, West Germany, (Reuter) — A U.S. Air Force C-5 Galaxy, the world's largest aircraft, made a successful emergency landing on a bed of foam Wednesday when its landing gear failed to operate.

Carter wins fight with 'killer rabbit'

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are fish stories and then there are rabbit stories, This is a rabbit story.

It seems that President Carter, fishing near his home in Plains, Ga., last spring, was attacked by a swimming, hissing rabbit, which made for his canoe.

He beat the beast back with a paddle.

Carter was unharmed. There was no word on the fate of the rabbit.

But when Carter told the tale of the aquatic attack rabbit, some of his closest aides scoffed. "Everybody knows rabbits don't swim," said one former skeptic.

The president had proof. A White House photographer had shots of the president fending off the bunny.

LEARN FRENCH
AT THE UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA
Beginning September 10

The French Language Diploma Programme is to assist adults to speak French at a functional level of competence. In addition, the Programme includes some study of composition skills and French-Canadian culture and society. The courses consist of 118 hours of instruction and the registration fee is $175.

SPECIAL FEATURES
★ designed for adult students
★ convenient day and evening classes
★ no previous knowledge of spoken French required
★ placement according to present language ability
★ emphasis is on oral language competence; gradual introduction of the written language
★ audio-visual methods employed
★ Canadian materials and contexts included
★ small classes meeting twice weekly

Money to the rich

As Joe Clark and his government dither on the timing and contents of the first Conservative budget, homeowners across Canada are waiting anxiously to see what sort of tax relief they will get through Clark's promised mortgage tax deductibility program.

However, a recent study by Statistics Canada shows that the majority of those on the edge of their seats are the wealthy and relatively wealthy. Original criticisms of the plan as a vote-getting sop for the rich seem to be borne out by StatsCan. In the study, the federal agency looked at the income and occupational groups who hold mortgages to discover who would benefit the most if and when the Tories implement the much-ballyhooed election promise.

The results really shouldn't surprise anyone.

StatsCan found that of all families with an income of $35,000 a year or more, 62 per cent held mortgages — presumably mortgages that would qualify them for the new program. Of families with an income of only $11,000 to $15,000, a mere 29 per cent held mortgages.

It must also be noted that the high income families will benefit twice from the program. Not only are they more likely to hold mortgages, and their mortgages are likely to be higher, but also they are in a higher tax bracket so they save more in absolute dollars.

The same sort of findings come from a study of the occupational groups. The group with the highest proportion of mortgages is those who classify themselves as "managers," not normally a class deemed in great need of government assistance. Professionals run a good second, while smaller proportions of those in the traditionally low-paying service and clerical groups have mortgages. (An interesting side note: as a group, more farmers than any other group own their own homes — almost 80 per cent — but hardly any of them have to pay mortgages, apparently as a result of the family farm handed down from generation to generation.)

It's also worth noting that the program will benefit a lower percentage of families in Quebec than in any other province, even though the Tories desperately need to bolster their Quebec image. The study shows that only 55 per cent of Quebec households are in their own home, compared with 68 per cent in B.C., 66 per cent in Ontario, and a high of 87 per cent in Newfoundland.

Clearly, the Tories' hope is that the mortgage deductibility plan would change these home ownership patterns so that more low-income and clerical workers would own their own homes. Yet they have produced no evidence to show that the plan will overcome the barriers of high interest rates and large down payments to accomplish that goal.

It can safely be assumed that, for several years at least, the mortgage plan will offer by far its greatest benefits to those who need them least.

Need negotiations now

It seems the albacore tuna affair that has seen eight American fishboat skippers charged in connection with violating Canada's 200-mile fishing zone, has prompted government officials of both county's to seek a resumption of talks to further the scope of west coast fishing treaties. Canadian officials have hastily called a meeting of the advisors to our maritime negotiating team.

Now that Fisheries Minister James McGrath has had ample opportunity to familiarize himself with the international politics of fish, he should see that those negotiations resume as soon as possible. It's unfortunate that the impetus had to come from Canada's enforcing its sovereignty over its maritime boundaries, but this should heighten the desire of the other side to get back to the table.

When negotiations resume, the Canadian team should give more attention to the views of its advisory body. During the last round, which ended earlier this year with Canada and the United States reaching a tentative agreement on fishing halibut and groundfish, the advisory group unanimously opposed the position accepted by the Canadian team. They appealed to the minister not to sign the agreement.

The grounds for protest were legitimate. After years of co-operation on fishing and stock management under the International Halibut Convention, Canadian halibut men will be unable to fish Alaska waters after 1980.

Now we are faced with tuna. Canada claims control of all fish within its 200-mile limit, while the United States recognizes no boundaries beyond 12 miles for migratory fish such as tuna.

Given that the two countries have yet to reach agreement on the thorny issue of salmon and herring interception, and that Canada has no tuna fishery to speak of, there is ample room for trade-offs through negotiations that would benefit both countries. The sooner the better.

Healing of a nasty wound

MONTREAL — The bilingual air traffic control dispute of 1976 ripped open a nasty wound in Canadian society that has taken more than three years to heal.

But now that the federal government has agreed to implement bilingual air communications throughout Quebec, Roger Demers sees the victory of Quebec controllers as a breakthrough for the whole country.

"The psychological climate has changed," says the president of Les Gens de l'Air — the breakaway group of Quebec air workers who led the fight for bilingualism.

Demers says English-speaking pilots and controllers who shut down Canada's air travel system three years ago to protest the safety threat posed by French-in-the-air now "understand the reality of Quebec."

"They appreciate that Quebec wants to live in its own language and culture and that the same should apply to the language of aviation."

Demers, who bitterly accused English pilots and controllers of "pure racism" during the 1976 dispute, says there is "a new feeling of mutual respect" between French and English controllers.

A new feeling

And he says Quebec has once again prodded the rest of Canada into taking a decision that will bring the country closer together.

"Quebecers have always been 20 years ahead of the rest of the country as far as nationalism is concerned," says Demers. "You only have to think of the flag debate, the debate over a national anthem and the campaign for two official languages to realize Quebec was always in the lead."

But Demers admits that English-speaking pilots and controllers might still be opposed to bilingualism in the air if the separatist Parti Quebecois government had not been elected in November, 1976.

During the summer of '76, Quebecers became outraged at the strikes by English-speaking pilots and controllers and at the anti-Quebec backlash building in the rest of the country over French air communications.

The feeling spilled over into the autumn election campaign where it seemed that almost every PQ supporter was wearing a Gens de l'Air button on his lapel with the slogan "Il y a du francais dans l'air" (There's French in the air.")

What resulted was an emotional protest vote for the PQ demonstrating that Quebecers stood behind the Gens de l'Air in its fight. That vote may have won the PQ as many as 20 seats in the provincial election — enough to provide a majority government for Rene Levesque.

One English newspaper later labelled Ken Maley, president of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, "separatist of the year" for CALPA's contribution to the PQ's election.

But the haste with which Federal Transport Minister Don Mazankowski accepted the recommendation for bilingual air traffic control in Quebec by a federal commission of inquiry indicates the Conservative government is anxious to make a gesture of good faith towards Quebec.

Demers says the Gens de l'Air were appalled at the way English pilots and controllers were able to "blackmail" the Trudeau government into delaying introduction of bilingual air communications in Quebec until the federal inquiry on air safety made its report.

But now he says the three-year-old inquiry was the best possible solution to the crisis because "it allowed reason to replace emotion."

"The arguments of those who claimed that bilingual air communication was unsafe simply did not stand up to the weight of statistics and evidence showing that it was indeed safe."

The federal inquiry conducted flight simulator studies in Hull, Que. to test the safety of bilingual air control. It also studied the experiences of busy international airports in Japan, Brazil, Mexico, Italy, Switzerland, Germany and France before recommending the go-ahead in Quebec.

While the decision has been welcomed by the Quebec aviation industry and French-language editorialists, PQ cabinet ministers are still complaining about the situation.

Quebec Transport Minister Lucien Lessard fears the implementation of bilingual air control will take too long, even though Gens de l'Air president Demers says he is satisfied with the timetable calling for bilingual communications around Montreal and Quebec City by early 1980.

Communications Minister Louis O'Neill says the three-year inquiry was a waste of time, an opinion also contested by Demers who maintains that a technical study was needed to dissolve the crisis.

Won't change much

Demers agrees the introduction of bilingual air control won't change much at Quebec airports. French was already being used for visual flight rules at small airports in Quebec and French communications were frequently monitored at the major airports handling instrument flights.

The House of Commons was told last year that there have been more than 10,000 violations of a federal transport order barring French communications under instrument flight rules.

Anyone contesting the federal government's decision now would simply be trying to alter a "fait accompli." Representatives of CALPA and CATCA, the associations of pilots and controllers, recognize the futility of contesting the decision even if they still have misgivings about air safety.

The only grumbling about the decision in the aviation industry has come from a small American airline company which says it may pull its flights out of Montreal's Dorval airport if it feels French air communications pose a threat to safety.

10 premiers of good faith

QUEBEC — Once again, the premiers' conference at Pointe-au-Pic last week was termed an exercise in futility, since the premiers could not agree on a common policy on such conflicting issues as the price of domestic oil or even a short-term economic policy.

Liberal opposition leader Claude Ryan even suggested that the conferences cannot produce any positive results when the federal government is not an active partner in the decision-making process.

If there is no clear agreement on the kind of action that should be taken, at least everybody supports the idea of a federal-provincial concentration on economic matters, including an energy policy that can meet the needs of both the producing and the consuming provinces.

Talk about issues

But the most refreshing news from the meeting was the willingness and the capability of the premiers to talk about specific issues other than the old constitutional quarrel and the so-called threat to the unity of the country.

As long as men of good faith are able to sit together and attempt to settle, in a pragmatic way, problems that affect their people, no matter how obsolete the constitutional framework they must work within, there is considerable hope that deeper differences of opinion can eventually be resolved.

For that matter, the low-key approach of Clark to the whole constitutional question could prove to be astute and effective. Instead of urging all provinces to gang up against Quebec, he calmly chose to listen to Levesque, and expressed the hope that normal business between Ottawa and Quebec would go on, even if a referendum campaign is coming into the picture.

This attitude shows some respect for the democratic process and also confidence in the political maturity of Quebecers who do not need to be told by Ottawa how to make up their minds. It also allows Clark to buy precious time without antagonizing those in the province who are prepared to reject any proposal from Ottawa, no matter how new and how attractive it might be.

If Clark manages to find an acceptable compromise on the energy issue, if new economic policies are implemented, giving Quebec and eastern Canada some hope of achieving some prosperity, constitutional proposals will be listening to more carefully.

But Clark should not fall into the trap of revealing too soon some uncompleted and untested constitutional policy that can be viewed in the province as another sign of Ottawa arrogance. Rather, he should take his time, even if Levesque presses him to state his views clearly on the question before the referendum is called.

It is in Levesque's interest to use the federal stand on constitutional matters as a weapon in favor of his own option. But it is also in the interest of Ottawa, and of Canada as a whole, to cool the issue so that coherent and peaceful discussions can take place.

Currently, the atmosphere in Ottawa has changed. Instead of witnessing Quebec federal ministers yelling at their provincial counterparts, Quebecers are watching a sober government trying to establish links with a provincial government that is advocating negotiations. This attitude, of course, cannot replace a solid constitutional policy, but for a while it helps to create a new climate of confidence. That can be very important when the real discussions take place.

If Clark maintains his low-key approach towards Quebec, Levesque may even run into trouble explaining to Quebecers that the time has come to decide once and for all between Canada and Quebec. Years of confrontation exasperated a lot of Quebecers. but peaceful discussions can better save the reputation of Canada than all the stormy speeches.

By showing that they did not forget about real things at their meeting of Pointe-au-Pic, the provincial premiers as least indicated that the other political process is not paralysed. On the other hand, by assuring Quebecers that his government will not use the referendum campaigh as a pretext to jeopareise the normal resolution of any federal-provincial issue that can arise during that period Clark indicated his willingness to solve problems instead of using them to make political gains.

Not forever

Of course, this kind of honeymoon can not last forever. Some day, Levesque and Clark must face each other and squarely disagree. But in the meantime, both benefit from a wider breathing space and the whole country can recover from a hectic period of tough and unproductive confrontation.

By keeping aloof from the debate between Quebecers, Clark can be in a better position after to act as the genuine sponsor of an authentic constitutional reform. To succeed, he must be very careful not to fight fire with fire. His cool is his best asset, as long as he makes sure that new policies will be tabled in due course.

Levesque is well aware of the difficulty of scoring points against a silent opponent on the hustings. That is the reason why he urges Clark to speak out. And that is why Clark is in no hurry to start a verbal war.

New truth

The deflection of Bolshoi Ballet star Alexander Godunov and the subsequent drama at Kennedy Airport with Ludmilla Vlasova, Godunov's wife, reveal something interesting about Soviet and American relations, two contrasting ideologies, and human nature. This became clear after the ballerina decided of her own free will to return to Moscow.

During the controversy when it was suspected Vlasova was being coerced into leaving the U.S., a significant phenomenon took place: the identification with the romantic notion of America's pristine goodness, and the villainous oppressiveness of the USSR. Godunov had come to his senses and had embraced the liberty and joy of truth — as embodied in the constitution and quality of life of the United States of America. We all hoped his ballerina wife would be similarly relieved of the illusion of the superiority of the Soviet way of life. Only systematic brainwashing could keep all these talented hockey players and artists from defecting to the country obviously occupying a preferential position in the eyes of God.

But, no, in spite of the noble attempts of the American state department to ensure the decision of the ballerina was her own — a 72-hour delay at the airport — the lady was "relaxed and forceful" in her expression of her desire to differ with her husband and return to her home. One could feel the huge disappointment of America's (and even your and my) ego that this drama did not climax in the poetic justice we would have expected: she would cry out the pressured threats of her captors and lunge for freedom right there. Alas, she created the dissonance we cannot adjust to, and we are left with the puzzling question: how could someone gifted, brilliant, and beautiful choose chains instead of wings?

Well, it seems the Russians have a case against us, and that in spite of the greater manifest forms of "freedom" we have yet to become convincing in the degree of our happiness of authentic individuality, Surrender to a collective destiny still affords a fulfillment that — at least in the minds of the great majority of Soviet visitors to the West — is not effectively challenged by the consecration of the individual ego. And we see the imbalance in the Soviet's hockey superiority where the Promethean impulses of Canadian individuality fail to overtake the disciplined co-operation of the Russian style of play. It is a head-on clash of interpretation of human nature, and from this episode we may perhaps look at the abuses of "freedom" and consider a form of individuality that at least includes some of the satisfactions of living under a greater sensitivity to the whole.

May it now be within our capability to find something universal and individual in the metaphysics of man's consciousness? Capitalism and communism surely are but the metaphors of man's two tendencies: expansion of awareness, individuation of personality. An interesting ideology that would be that transcends the metaphor and delivers us to Bolshoian wholeness but preserves Shakespearian individuality. — Robin W. Carlsen, 1225 Sunnyside Avenue.

Anthony Westell's article 'No Need to Panic Over National Debt' is dangerously misleading.

After the first war, Germany (as all the partakers) ended with a gigantic war debt, but Germany soon got rid of its war debt by inflation. By the time the housewife was wheeling a barrowful of mark notes to buy the day's groceries, her war debt had been reduced to an infinitesimal part of the gross national product. The same process is going on here. Our national debt is now a lower proportion of GNP because inflation is rapidly rendering all the savings put into Government bonds worthless.

Every coin collector will tell you that a pre-1966 Canadian quarter has now about $1.50 of Canadian paper money's worth of silver in it.

It's pure bunkum that government's can stimulate the economy — except in an unhealthy way. More lame duck companies saved, more bureaucrats hired, simply means a heavier load for healthy companies and workers to carry, and more unemployment and more inflation. — J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer Street.

Vatican involved in some murky finances

By HELLA PICK
Manchester Guardian

Pope to let in light?

Pope John Paul has just decided that the public has a right to know something of the Church's finances. He has ordered the Vatican's financial experts to draw up a balance sheet of its income and expenditure, and produce it by the end of the year.

The Vatican's wealth, and its investments, have always been a closely guarded secret. There is no way of knowing whether the Pope will succeed in overcoming the reluctance of those who handle the Church's money to reveal more than a perfunctory minimum of its worldly materialistic activities.

Their concern is not only over the size of the Vatican's financial holdings — a figure which has never been revealed, but which may well be in excess of $50 billion — but over the ways in which this money has been invested. Inevitably, the Vatican has been caught up with a variety of international financial networks, sometimes with highly doubtful associations. It is often rumored that the Vatican at one time acquired an interest in a firm that manufactured the Pill.

This might have surprised, and indeed shocked, the faithful. But, according to the revelations in a recently published book, Vodka-Cola, by Charles Levinson, this is just a minor aberration in a record of deep Vatican involvement with wide-ranging manufacturing interests and also with Michele Sindona, the Italian financier sought by courts in several countries, including Italy and the United States, who disappeared this month while awaiting trial in New York.

Levinson is a trade unionist, secretary of the Geneva-based International Federation of Chemical, Energy and General Workers' Unions, who has become a specialist in multinational corporations. His book sets out to demonstrate that business interests in the Communist world and the West combine in mutually beneficial trade and financial deals in which the politicians become mere pawns, and operate a side-show to the real exercise of power.

He argues that Sindona, through his contacts with the banking world, was, and possibly still is, used by those who pull the real strings of power. He asserts that the Vatican, which, for some years had Sindona as its principal financial adviser, inevitably became an accessory to financial manipulations, which, according to Levinson, involved the Mafia as well as Soviet-owned banks, and institutions in which the French and Italian Communist parties held some of their funds.

Indeed, "it is possible," writes Levinson, that "Sindona accomplished the ultimate ecumenical achievement: the Vatican's share in Generale Immobiliare — an important construction company — was later bought by Fiat and by a mysterious consortium. And it soon transpired that a third share in this consortium was owned by someone connected with the Italian Communist Party."

Levinson writes about the "Vodka-Cola molecule" which "uses the system's multiple resources to obtain agreements and illegally to manipulate vast sums. The clients and the intermediaries of this system," he asserts, "are equally the London-based Moscow-Narodny Bank, the Vatican or the Italian Communist Party."

In a chapter on the Vatican's holdings, Levinson suggests the Church has investments in such major banks as Switzerland's Credit Suisse, the Rothschild Bank in France, the Chase Manhattan, Bankers Trust and the Morgan Bank, all in the U.S. Until the arrival of Sindona, in 1969, the Vatican appears to have held most of its share portfolio in Italy, with interests in companies that owned luxury hotels, Alitalia, the Autostrada system and Alfa Romeo.

Generale Immobiliare, while it was still controlled by the Vatican, became one of the world's largest construction companies, building not only in Italy, but also in France and Washington, where it helped to finance the Watergate complex. Technically, the Vatican may still have been one of the landlords of the Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate during the 1972 break-in which led to Nixon's downfall.

Sindona was already widely known as a banker when he came to know Monsignor Paul Marcinkus, who was handling much of the Vatican's investments. The two became friends, and in 1969 Sindona became the Vatican's chief financial consultant. This opened a period which the Vatican's spokesmen describe as diversification of their portfolio. Yet, according to Levinson's account, this also led to the use of Vatican funds for the complex financial manipulations operated by Sindona and his associates.

It involved the establishment of private banks in Switzerland, the transfer of funds to various tax-havens such as Liechtenstein and the Bahamas, and financial speculations that eventually, in 1974, led to the collapse of the Sindona empire, the closure of his banks, and a series of demands for official investigation.

The Vatican has admitted that it lost a great deal of money through its associations with Sindona's affairs. The actual figures have never been revealed. But Levinson quotes Massimo Spada, and Italian businessman with close links to the Vatican, that the Church "lost 24 billion francs from its 15 per cent share in the Banca Unione, and £43 million from its 49 per cent share in the Swiss Bank."

Monsignor Benelli, then assistant secretary of state in the Vatican, reacted to the news of an official Swiss inquiry into Sindona's activities in Switzerland by exclaiming: "The judiciary inquiry will enable us to find out exactly how our financial affairs operate. It is intolerable."

Now it is the Pope himself who wants to know the intolerable, not just for himself, but for the faithful all over the world — and maybe even for unbelievers who consider that they should be allowed to know more about financial activities and resources of one of the world's super-rich institutions.

Those who know the Vatican question how much will be allowed to surface. Levinson's assertions have not been challenged by the Vatican. But he doubts whether the Curia will decide to confirm them.

Marijuana law a mockery

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Two importers of marijuana have been sacrificed on the altar of Parliament's obstinacy. Its failure over the past years to address, and tackle, a sweeping revision of the narcotic provisions in the Criminal Code has added at least two years to the convicted men's sentences.

Harkel Dacosta and Donovan McKenzie were found guilty of importing 467 pounds of marijuana into Canada, by sealing the drug in cans purporting to contain Jamaican ackees. Since the two were first offenders, Judge Arthur Whealy of York County Court favored a sentence of between two and five years. The term, he said, would "not only serve the interests of society in deterring crime, but would take into account the personal circumstances of each of the prisoners before me, the amount of the drug imported and all those miscellaneous facts that go to make up that very unscientific judgment as to what is an appropriate sentence."

It was a sentence he was prevented by law from passing.

Under section 5 (2) of the Narcotic Control Act, every person who imports a narcotic into Canada "is liable to imprisonment for life but not less than seven years." A judge, no matter how excessive he may consider the seven year minimum, is obliged to enforce it. In 1976, County Court Judge Stephen Borins tried imposing a lighter sentence, ruling that the minimum constituted "cruel and unusual punishment" under the Bill of Rights. But the Ontario Supreme Court called his reasoning "debatable and dubious", and increased the prison term to seven years.

Judge Whealy had no choice. "I will of course bow to the will of Parliament," he ruled, "but I do so very unwillingly. Under no other circumstances ... would I have sentenced either of these accused persons to seven years." He has been denied the prerogative of discretion. His right to "balance the interest of society as a whole agaist those of the accused personally", and to consider "questions of deterrence, rehabilitation, public repudiation of the conduct, social values and retribution", has been preempted.

Worse, the mandatory minimum sentence demanded by section 5 is exceptional. Although piracy, rape, air hijacking, kidnapping and robbery are crimes which, along with murder, "inflame the passions of the law-abiding citizens most violently," Parliament has not felt it necessary to provide a minimum penalty. In fact, Parliament has imposed such a penalty in connection with only three crimes punishable by life imprisonment: murder, high treason and importing a narcotic. "I am utterly unpersuaded," he told the courtroom, "that the offence of importing a narcotic, whatever the narcotic is, is as serious as murder and treason." When the narcotic is cannabis, the comparison becomes ludicrous.

"It is a matter of common and public knowledge," the judge noted, "that at the outset of the recent federal election, three major political parties all stated that there had been unanimous approval in Parliament (that) cannabis substances, including marijuana, could have been, by consent, redefined in some fashion from narcotics to some lesser and less punishable category. If that unanimous consent had been forthcoming in Parliament, then it would be to me, quite clear, that there would be no minimum sentence of seven years for importing cannabis products."

This and other generations, he said, have built a way of life around, and a market for, cannabis products. Ottawa has vowed for years to alter what it recognizes as a string of harsh laws governing the drug. Yet nothing has happened.

Judge Whealy was once a special federal prosecutor in drug cases. He knows his subject, and his logic is flawless. He is calling for a repeal of minimum mandatory sentences for importers of narcotics. And he is echoing from the bench what Judge Borins, lawyers, associations and individuals have been saying for years — that continuing to treat cannibis as a narcotic, with the consequent criminal penalties, makes a mockery of the law.

Can Parliament, the body responsible for that law, afford not to listen? Can it afford not to act?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Not all Americans were in the gasoline queues this summer, battling frustration. A good many appear to have looked the situation over and adjusted: they stayed home and worked on their houses or gardens instead.

A New York Times survey indicates that the gasoline shortage increased sales in hardware and home and garden improvement industries.

The National Retail Hardware Association thinks May-to-August will account for 40 per cent instead of the usual 35 per cent of the industry's annual sales. "The shortage of gas might cause people to stay home and force them to do things they'd rather not do," said one of the group's research directors. "Plus, the economy is such that people don't have additional income to contract the work."

"I just returned from the annual National Hardware Show in Chicago last week and there wasn't one retailer down in the mouth," said the editor of Building Supply News. Sales were sustained even in parts of the country hardest hit by gasoline shortages (where picking up supplies was difficult).

"We won't know what has happened to this merchandise until after Labor Day," said a spokesman for Sears, Roebuck & Company, the largest retailer in the United States — its home and garden improvement sector is the biggest of its nine sectors, accounting for $3 billion of Sears' $18 billion in annual sales. "But regardless of any gas situation, the economies of the situation will affect such things as eating out and long and short trips. We are looking to the mid-term — from Labor Day through the Fourth of July 1980 — and are gearing ourselves for the probability that people will be doing more things around the home."

"I don't recall any time when business has been this strong over the last six-month period," said the executive vice-president of a chain of home-centre stores in the Pacific Northwest. "We are running about 15 per cent higher per month than last year."

The hysteria of some over the gasoline situation was dismaying. It implied that a great many Americans were incapable of facing the absolute inevitability of constricted energy supplies. Yet in behind the noisy ones were the others, who have simply diverted their efforts from an unproductive area to a productive one. They have not received the headlines; but — repairing where others destroy — they seem more likely to shape the course of the nation.

The office block

Katharine Whitehorn

LONDON — "Secretary" is a word that can mean anything from the Queen Bee in the chairman's office who effectively runs the whole firm, to the girl who graces the front desk in much the same way as a rubber-plant, and is reckoned to be doing well if she doesn't actually get her fingers stuck in the typewriter.

Since they share the title, though, the senior secretaries are too apt to share the status and the pay, neither of which are a patch of what they should be. To try to do something about this, an outfit called the European Association of Professional Secretaries was formed a year or two ago by Sonia Vanular, a management consultant.

The association is strong in Holland, Britain and Denmark, and there are one or two members in most European countries. They aim for a small, highly select membership — only women over 25 need apply and they must have really top bosses in big firms — managing director, chairman or finance director.

* * *

Undeniably, recognition for their work is overdue: they are probably worth quite as much to the firm as any $40,000-a-year executive, yet in the U.K. their pay is around $10,000-$12,000; which is a disgrace and the lowest in Europe except for Spain. Getting a decent professional body — i.e. an upmarket trade union — is plainly the first step. But there is a sort of inbuilt snag to this effort which leaves me very much in two minds about whether I approve of them or not.

For in the 19th century, when secretaries were all men, they were known to be useful — but in so far as they were useful they were also promotable. An inspiring young politician or banker would start as a secretary; the actual amount of quill-pushing might be large or small, but it was clearly a position of trust and a stepping-stone to higher things.

But when, in G. K. Chesterton's phrase, "10,000 women said, 'I will not be dictated to,' " and rose up and became stenographers, the job came to be regarded as an end in itself. And in those trades which girls still enter as secretaries and hope to heave themselves out from behind the typewriter in time — journalism, advertising, publishing — it's getting increasingly difficult for them to do so.

So should bright women be trying to get the image of secretary enhanced? Or should they be trying to get it recognized as a stage towards management? Or should they be steering clear of secretarial work altogether?

No one asks a bright graduate male to type someone else's letters for several years before anyone thinks of giving him anything else to do; no mother says to her son; "Why don't you just take a secretarial course anyway, dear. It'll always give you something to fall back on?"

In the U.S. there are male secretaries, of course — some, anyway. But you're up against a sort of Catch 22. While a trade is staffed almost entirely by women, it has a hell of a job getting any status. But if it is open to men, and seen as a possible stage in a career worthy of males, then it's highly likely that the men will somehow contrive to have all the plums — just as, as soon as they got a Proper Career Structure into nursing, somehow half the new senior nursing officers were found to be wearing trousers.

Of course the vital role of a good secretary ought to be recognized. But I cannot help remembering one of these professional secretaries was once offered (or so her boss says) a job on the management ladder, and turned it down because she preferred to stay at the centre of things.

I cannot help remembering all those NATO secretaries in Bonn, paid a fortune and trusted with all sorts of secrets, who found themselves so isolated from the mainstream of the real decision-making — and so much in a majority numerically, since every two-bit junior executive had to have his "girl" — that they were an easy prey to the seducers from behind the Iron Curtain — to the bottomless embarrassment, of course, of the Western males who had failed to keep them happy themselves.

If they were not women, they wouldn't be stuck in the slot. They might choose it, they might aspire to it, but they wouldn't find, as they do now, that it's as difficult to get free from typist's stool to boss' desk as it is to get straight to the boss' desk in the first place.

* * *

And there is a new time coming: the European Association of Professional Secretaries realizes it. There will be a time when no one will need shorthand-typing any more; when, if a man wants his tea made and his ego massaged and flowers sent to his wife, he'll actually have to admit that that is what the woman is being paid for — either that, or she'll have to do a great deal more.

Have they no men in the association? "There was one, a Dane," said Pauline Watford, secretary to the chairman of British Rail. "But of course men are usually called personal assistants". She moved with her boss, Sir Peter Parker, when he came to British Rail — and before that she was his personal assistant. Only British Rail doesn't have women PAs — so she had to go back to being a secretary. And that, in a nutshell, is what they are up against.

Company reports

B of M

Bank of Montreal reportes after-tax balance of revenue for the nine months ended July 31 rose 23 per cent to $164.5 million, or $3.40 a share, up from $133.5 million, or $3.13 a share, for the same period last year. After-tax balance of revenue increased to $58 million, or $1.19 a share, up 15 per cent from $50.6 million, or $1.18 a share, in 1978.

Scotiabank

The Bank of Nova Scotia reports profits for the nine months ended July 31 of $127.7 million, an increase of $21.2 million or 19.9 per cent from the comparable period in 1978. Earnings per share for the period were $2.95, up 37 cents over the first three quarters of last year. Total assets at July 31 reached $32.5 billion, up 29.9 per cent from the same date a year ago. C. E. Ritchie, chairman and president, said "Canadian currency loan growth was particularly strong this past quarter, as the improvement noted in the April quarter continued. Net interest income was 15.3 per cent higher than in the same period last year. Other oparating revenues increased 20.9 per cent, a higher rate than operating expenses which were up 16.5 per cent. Earnings for the July quarter, at $45 million, were $6.2 million or 15.9 per cent more than in the April quarter. The bank also announced the quarterly dividend is being increased by two cents a share to 33 cents for the quarter ending Oct. 31.

Bank of B.C.

The Bank of British Columbia has reported a balance of revenue of $4,499,000 for the period ending July 31, a 14.9 per cent increase over $3,914,000 for the comparable period in 1978. Shares are now $2.98 a share, down 5.1 per cent from $3.14 per share a year ago, the bank said in a prepared statement. The bank's total revenue was up 64 per cent this year at $156.8 million compared to $95.6 million in 1978. Trevor Pilley, chairman and chief executive officer, said asset growth in the third quarter was slow in comparison to the strong growth marked in the first half of the year. He said the first half strength resulted in a 26 per cent increase over the nine months compared to 34 per cent for the 12 months ending July 31, 1979. Pillay said the bank's effective tax rate so far this year was reduced to 23.5 per cent, reflecting the after tax effects of an increased investment this year in income debenture and term preferred securities. With the opening of a new branch in Burnaby in the past quarter and another branch planned for Edmonton, he said the bank will have 46 branches by the end of the fiscal year.

Bombardier

Bombardier Inc. reports net consolidated earnings for the quarter ended July 31 rose to $5.09 million, or $1.31 a share, more than double the $2.20 million, or 57 cents a share, it earned in the same period last year. Sales totalled $153.5 million for 1979, compared to $137.8 million last year. Laurent Beaudoin, president and chief executive officer, said the improvement reflected a good performance in most divisions of the company, except the rail and diesel division and the thermal division, which have been on strike since May 18. Negotiations in the dispute resumed Aug. 17.

'Shameful actions' put players on ice

sion until Wednesday after the seven pleaded guilty Friday to common assault charges.

Fistric, Hobbins, Howes and Roflick pleaded guilty to assaulting defenceman Blake Wesley of the Winter Hawks.

Kelly and Fistric admitted assaulting Portland coach Ken Hodge, who was punched in the face and slashed across the wrist with a stick during the incident. A charge of carrying a dangerous weapon — a hockey stick — was dropped Friday against Kelly after the guilty pleas on the assault charges.

Shaw noted in his reasons for sentencing that four of the defendants had ganged up on Wesley and three others had ganged up on Dobson.

"Neither victim could defend himself," said the judge. "And then two of the defendants separately assaulted the Portland coach.

"He, of course, was not wearing protective hockey gear.

"It is fortunate that they (the two Portland players) did not suffer any permanent injury in the brawl, for their careers could have been ruined."

Court was told that Wesley was punched in the throat by Fistric before other Bruins joined in and the Portland captain suffered severe bruises and blurred vision from the beating.

Shaw heard that Dobson was hit in the side of the head by Howes as he lined up for a faceoff and received numerous bruises and contusions to the face and head after being smashed against the plexiglass several times.

Hodge had his glasses broken in the exchange near the Portland bench and his wrist watch was smashed by a stick.

Ernie McLean, co-owner of the Bruin franchise and coach of the team, said later outside the courtroom that Shaw was "trying to be the judge who is going to clean up hockey."

"I'm worried about the affect on the game," said McLean, "because the judge's ruling makes a hipcheck a criminal offence.

"One of the things I was disturbed about was that Portland, throughout this thing, was not blamed."

McLean and the seven players were suspended for various lengths of time by the league following the brawl and the New Westminster team was fined $1,500 by the WHL following a hearing.

The defence had asked the judge for absolute discharges so that prospects of professional hockey careers for his clients would not be jeopardized by criminal convictions.

Crown counsel Bill Stewart told Shaw that no sport can be so well policed that athletes can be made immune to prosecution if they break laws. He said in summation that the sentence should be made in the spirit of protecting the public.

Man escapes copter crash

A Nanaimo man escaped serious injury today when the helicopter he was flying crashed and burned shortly after takeoff at Cassidy Airport.

A witness said the helicopter got about 30 metres off the ground before it crashed.

Rodger Mann, 42, was pulled from the wreckage by an airport employee after he was unable to unfasten his seatbelt.

Fishboats hit financial reef

A move made by the department of fisheries this month will make it tougher for commercial fishermen to finance their boats and licenses.

Harold Henson, manager of the Royal Bank's legal department in Vancouver, said today he received a letter from the department, dated Aug. 16, saying it will no longer accept liens on fishing licenses from banks and lending establishments.

The department also said it will not refuse to transfer licences when transfer is requested by the owner of the vessel, even though a bank is owed money on the license.

Henson said there has never been any formal agreement with the department that it would accept liens on licenses and the department's decision will make it difficult for fishermen to get loans.

He said his department is now considering whether to refer the matter to the Canadian Bankers Association and how to advise bank branches to deal with loan applications in the future.

With no new licenses being issued by the department, the cost of buying a license increases yearly.

The average vessel is 10 tons and a license averages $7,000 per ton, making a total requirement of $70,000.

Bill Webber, manager of the fisheries department's licensing branch in Vancouver, said the action was taken on the advice of justice department lawyers.

Webber said banks will still be able to register mortgages on fishing vessels with the department of transport but it is his understanding it is illegal under the banking act to loan money on licensable assets.

'If the piece doesn't speak for itself, there is no use me talking about it'

The $60,000 swizzle stick

By JANE COVERNTON
Times Staff

What is it?

"A refugee from Cape Canaveral," said one passer-by.

"Something to do with solar heating."

Hardly a person passing by the sculpture in the courtyard of the new $25 million provincial government building at 940 Broughton fails to look up — and comment — on the fanned-out wings of steel.

"I don't know. I just hope it doesn't make a noise."

"A tree, I say a tree."

Says its creator George Norris of Vancouver: "If the piece doesn't speak for itself, there's no use me talking about it."

Norris, who was born in Victoria, is spending his days at the Waddington Building — named after Alfred Waddington, a 19th century Victoria entrepreneur and writer — putting the finishing touches on the sculpture, which he refuses to name.

"It's similar to music or poetry. A name limits it to some kind of prosaic statement. Actually many people have caught on to some of the original ideas, even in the smart alec comments."

Sculptor Norris, left, on the job

Norris has been working on the sculpture for a couple of years, designing, modelling, casting, forming, and welding.

He was commissioned — for $60,000 — on the recomendation of the Provincial Art Committee, set up by the former NDP government.

Norris is reluctant to talk about money. He thinks money shouldn't be linked to art.

But building project manager Mack Lewis thinks the taxpayer got a bargain and Norris will be lucky if he makes $1.25 an hour for the time he's put in.

Norris has had lots of experience at this type of thing. He's been doing architectural sculpture for 20 years. One of his pieces, The Crab, graces the front of the MacMillan Planetarium in Vancouver.

When the Waddington Building sculpture — untitled — is finished, it will rotate slowly. It has a slip clutch, a reduction gear, and a magic electronic box.

Passers-by will be able to switch it on. It will spin for a while, and then gradually come to a stop.

"I wanted it to be extremely slow, almost floating, so as not to be an irritant," said Norris. "It will turn in an almost random way, just when people walk by. I hope that keeps it from being too mechanical."

There is one slight problem.

When the thing rotates, the curving steel blades catch the light of the sun and throw it into the eyes of captive office workers in the third and fourth floors.

"It blinded us," says one of them.

They've had to put long strips of paper across the tops of the windows facing the sculpture. The brown paper looks odd on the elegant new building.

He doesn't take their problems too seriously.

The eye-blinking caused by the sculpture is just one of a number of problems that have bedevilled the workers in the new building since they moved in about a year ago.

'Hindsight is wonderful' — manager

"Stairway Closed Due to Carpet Problems" the signs say.

The stairways are ultra-modern glass structures on the outside of the building. The sun beats into the stairwells and heats up the adhesive holding down the carpets. It melts and the carpets slip.

"Hindsight is wonderful," says project manager Lewis.

"We should have had ventilation in the stairwells. We thought enough air would get in just from the natural opening and shutting of doors."

Now the contractors are back — tacking down the carpet to wood strips.

Then there is the problem of the stained carpets.

In the companies department search office, and other areas, there are large black stains rubbed into the carpet. They appeared during construction and they won't go away. The carpets had to be put in before the partitions so that the partitions could later be moved.

"We've tried just about everything to get the stains out. In the worst areas, the carpet may just have to be replaced," says Lewis.

The contractor will bear the cost.

And there was a problem with the air-conditioning.

"We spent a lot of time and money balancing the system. It's very complex," says Lewis.

It was designed to conserve energy, not to adhere rigorously to one temperature. They hope that problem is now under control.

It's nice place to work — employees

Despite the minor bugs, the building seems to be a success.

Lewis said it came in under budget due to an overestimate of costs when the contracts were let. It was the time of the last oil crisis and rapidly escalating construction costs.

The original budget for construction alone was $17.7 million. The cost in the end was $15.8 million. The total cost including land assembly and interest was $25 million, still under the original budgeted $26 million.

And it is a nice place to work, according to a random survey of the 850 government employees.

They like the space — it was designed on the open office concept — and the fact the minions, not the bigshots, get the windows. They like being out of the dingy older buildings.

A lawyer who uses the companies branch search office says the staff is more cheerful since moving out of the old basement office.

There is a large courtyard on the Blanshard Street side and another courtyard and garden on the roof, which is accessible from the street.

And there is that sculpture.

Flight? A bird? A new nuclear weapon?

At the very least, it is evocative, as all good works of art should be.

Strike talk cuts visitors

Victoria's tourist business has dropped 30 per cent since workers on B.C. Ferries threatened to strike, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce was told Wednesday.

Ed Higgin, president of Victoria Visitors Information Centre, said the threat has taken a severe toll.

He said many businesses are reporting revenues down 30 per cent from the same period in 1978.

The drop began with the first indication by the workers they were considering strike action.

Until then it appeared Victoria was heading for tourist revenues of $250 million this year, up 25 per cent from $200 million in 1978, he said.

Concerns about gas shortages have also been a problem.

The recent decline has been the only black mark on an otherwise superlative tourist season, he told chamber directors at a meeting at the Strathcona Hotel.

Revenues could be even higher next year, with proper planning.

To prepare for next year, he said, a tourist seminar will be held in November. It will be one of the first functions held in the renovated old Crystal Garden building.

The seminar will discuss tourist ideas and, possibly, result in a reorganization of the VIC.

VIC revenues are not meeting requirements, he said.

The centre received $190,000 this year, $150,000 from its 550 members plus $40,000 from local municipalities.

Higgin said the municipal share should be at least equal to the funds raised by members.

But there was little hope of getting additional funds from municipalities so a membership drive will be launched. The goal will be 500 new members to put the total over 1,000.

Higgin said the tourist seminar might decide a new committee or task force should be formed to organize and control tourism for Victoria. The VIC would continue to serve its present functions.

Sidney to clear walks

He said there is a bylaw prohibiting the display of wares on sidewalks.

Municipal administrator Geoffrey Logan said Wednesday pedestrians have complained that merchandise displays outside shops are blocking sidewalks.

"It is of some concern because it could cause a serious accident," he said.

"There is angle parking on the main shopping street and a person forced to step off the sidewalk because of an obstruction could be hit by a car."

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me the population of British Columbia? K.A.

A. The provincial vital statistics branch says the population on June 1, 1978, was 2,535,200. This is the most recent count.

City strike threat by electrical crews

A walkout could close city hall, and lead to traffic and street-lighting problems as well as interfere with next week's Mann Cup lacrosse final.

The 15 employees, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 230, are in a legal position to walk off the job.

IBEW business representative Jack Zettler says the union is still discussing strategy and the walkout will not come today.

Negotiations with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association have been going on for more than eight months, assisted in the later stages by mediator Clark Gilmour.

However, an impasse was reached Monday and Gilmour was asked to withdraw. He has done so and filed his report with Labor Minister Allan Williams, clearing the way for a strike.

Those involved are communications technicians, electricians, linemen, truck drivers as well as maintenance people who take care of Memorial Arena where the best-of-seven Mann Cup final opens Tuesday.

Victoria Shamrocks, Western Lacrosse Association champs, are to meet the winners of the eastern final now being played between Peterborough Red Oaks and Brampton Excelsiors.

The electrical workers are responsible for city street lights and traffic signals, the communication systems for the fire and police departments and the downtown coin-operated carparks.

All city services, including garbage and street cleaning, could be affected by a strike as city inside and outside workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, have given the IBEW a promise that their members will not cross picket lines.

"We have to do something, they have backed us into a corner," Zettler said.

He said the only issue is the time lag before the employees get their increased salary.

Under the current system, the city electrical workers get parity with B.C. Hydro workers represented by the IBEW. However, there is a nine-month wait before the Victoria workers get the Hydro increase.

Retroactive to Jan. 1 they have been offered the four per cent Hydro employees won in April, 1978, plus whatever is negotiated over and above that during the Hydro negotiations.

However, Zettler said it will take nine months after the Hydro workers get this year's raise before the Victoria workers get anything over four per cent.

The Victoria workers want instant parity. When Hydro employees get their raise, then the city electrical workers should go to that level, he said.

Zettler said a six-month gap was negotiated into the contract 12 or 15 years ago and another three months added due to some adjustment made during the days of the federal anti-inflation program.

He said Victoria police and firemen get instant parity with their Vancouver counterparts so there is no reason the electrical employees can't be treated in the same way.

Colwood RCMP are seeking a knife-wielding bandit who held up the attendant at the Pay-Less gas station at Admirals and Craigflower Wednesday night and made off with $118.

The attendant, whose name was not released, was not hurt in the robbery which occurred at 8:35 p.m.

Police said the bandit, described as dark-skinned with shoulder length black hair, made his getaway on a small motorcycle.

'I tried to stick it out' says addict

A 24-year-old woman addict who quit after six weeks of voluntary treatment for addiction to prescription drugs at the Brannen Lake centre was told in Victoria provincial court Wednesday to go back and try harder.

Judge William Ostler instructed Leslie Ann Gutierrez, formerly of 1247 Alton, to take drug and alcohol counselling as directed by her probation officer, Ruth Brewster.

Gutierrez told the judge she didn't want to return to Brannen Lake because the initial experience, which began in June, was frustrating and the facility seemed unorganized.

She said she had been beaten up and spat upon by others taking the treatment program.

"Honest to God," she said, "I tried to stick it out up there. The things that I saw, I don't want to see."

She told of sitting in her room all day, writing in a log, and of seeing a psychologist only once while she was there.

Ostler said the Brannen Lake program is just in its infancy and he wasn't surprised she didn't like the atmosphere.

"You can't write your own ticket, you know," he said, referring to Gutierrez' suggestion that she go to psychiatrists and psychologists in Victoria. "If you go on like this, you'll kill yourself."

Ostler said there was good reason to send Gutierrez to jail because she attempted to commit fraud while on probation for another conviction.

The judge imposed a suspended sentence and placed her on two years probation. Conditions of her probation include residing where her probation officer directed, taking psychological and drug counselling as directed, and submitting to urinalysis.

Gutierrez had pleaded guilty Aug. 15 to attempted fraud in connection with a false prescription order June 17 at the Shoppers Drug Mart at Town and Country shopping centre.

Crown counsel Richard Law said that earlier this month a woman phoned the pharmacy about 2:15 p.m., identified herself as a doctor, and ordered a prescription of 50 tablets.

Shortly before 6 p.m., Gutierrez walked into the store and attempted to claim the prescription. When refused, she fled but was stopped by Saanich police in her vehicle on Blanshard.

Pair face trial in Farris case

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man and woman charged in a bawdy house case linked to the name of former B.C. chief justice John Farris were ordered Tuesday to stand trial in provincial court.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer dismissed an application by Wendy King, 30, and Raymond Young, 45, that the courts be prohibited from proceeding because the charge against them was not an offence under the law.

They are charged with keeping a common bawdy house.

Farris resigned last year, saying that the fact his name was mentioned had impaired his usefulness as a judge.

Lawyer starts ads today

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Don Jabour has started advertising his services again and now is including fee schedules, a move that sets him on a collision course with the Law Society of British Columbia.

One advertisement, to run today in a local newspaper, offers a free half-hour divorce consultation at his neighborhood law clinic, legal services covering separation agreements for $175 and uncontested divorces, including filing fees, for $350.

Last year, after a dispute involving Jabour, the law society laid down rules which restrict lawyers to discreet advertisements listing legal specialties, languages spoken, address and office hours.

Dentists lock out probing treasurer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The recently-elected treasurer of the British Columbia College of Dental Surgeons says he's been ostracized by other members of the college.

Dr. Murray Bloom of Vancouver said college officials have changed locks on the door of the college office and have refused to give him keys.

Bloom said the reason for the college's attitude was because of information he had gained from the organization's books about payments to elected officials.

This included payments amounting to more than $50,000 to a past president of the college in 1978 for work done in his official capacity, he said, and a number of other salaries in the $5,000 to $7,000 range which he found questionable.

Dr. Ted Ramage, college president, said that Bloom was entitled to investigate such payments, but that other members of the college's ruling body objected to his confrontational manner.

Ramage said Bloom was not barred from the locked facilities, but required to attend them during normal business hours, the same as all other council members.

Ramage said he didn't want to comment further on Bloom's many accusations until the 27-member college council had time to deal with the matter at its next meeting Sept. 28.

Ramage said the per diem payments in question were made in recognition of the fact that the "president spends a tremendous amount of time working for the college, instead of attending to his practice."

Bloom said the highest-paid council member was the past president, who drew $16,665 for six months in 1977, $50,665 for 1978 and $23,035 for part of 1979 until he was defeated.

Dr. Gordon McFarlane of Vancouver, identified as the past president, said he wasn't sure of the figures, but the per diem allowance is "supposed to reflect the average daily expenses, including overhead, of running a dental office."

Captured sunfish dies at aquarium

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mola mola which the Vancouver Aquarium had been watching over for several days died on Tuesday night.

Biologist Billy Wong said that either the injuries received while being caught in a fishermen's net off the west coast of Vancouver Island or the temperature change it encountered in its tank at the aquarium killed the fish.

Wong said he would like the opportunity to get another sunfish about the same size in the aquarium now that they have learned something about it.

The fish was about two feet long. Adult mola mola can weigh as much as 2,000 kilograms. They rarely survive in captivity.

6,000 claims in Skeena

TERRACE (CP) — More than 6,000 mining claims have been staked in the Skeena region in northwestern British Columbia so far this year, a statistical sign of the mining boom in the area.

Dick Morgan, a claims inspector for the provincial government's mine ministry, put the numbers into perspective by saying that only 12,000 claims were filed in the entire province four years ago.

Morgan said most of this year's claims were filed shortly after the provincial government released on June 22 information gathered in a mineral survey of the Skeena region.

Langley mayor faces deer-shooting charge

LANGLEY (CP) — Charges of shooting a deer out of season and pit-lamping likely won't affect Langley mayor George Driediger's political future.

Driediger, mayor for four years, has announced he will not seek re-election in November's municipal election.

He said Wednesday he shot a young doe Aug. 10 but added he was only protecting his 165-acres of strawberries from being eaten by the deer.

Complex okayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council has approved a $4 million recreational complex for the Bayshore Inn, including four tennis courts, two squash courts and two raquetball courts.

Mall addition

KELOWNA (CP) — Marathon Realty Co. Ltd. has announced plans for a $10 million expansion project which, if approved by city council, would make Orchard Park Shopping Centre the largest mall in B.C. outside the Vancouver area.

Pickets can stay

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Labor Relations Board has declined to order secondary pickets removed from a spur rail line leading to Placer Developments Ltd.'s Gibraltar mine near Williams Lake.

Members of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, on strike at Placer's Endako mine near Fraser Lake since Feb. 14, have been picketing the spur line in an attempt to force a contract settlement.

The labor board said it cannot rule on the pickets until the courts hear a dispute over alleged trespassing by the pickets.

Plane off course

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Aviation investigators say there is no sure explanation why a light plane was in U.S. airspace when it slammed into a mountainside Monday night, killing five members of a Castlegar family.

Investigators said the plane, a Piper Lancer, was headed from Vancouver to Trail, but was about 25 to 30 kilometres south of the border when it crashed into the fog-covered mountain.

The victims were identified Wednesday as David and Marian Cooper, both 38, and their children Sharon, 16, Brad, 14, and Derik, 7.

Alert Bay solution 'not enough'

ALERT BAY (CP) — The Nimpkish Indian band says solutions offered Wednesday by the provincial government will neither solve the major health care problems in the community nor satisfy its demand for a public inquiry.

About 15 members of the Nimpkish Indian band walked out of a meeting as Health Minister Bob McClelland announced plans for a new 15-bed hospital, an alcohol detoxification centre, changes in hospital regulations and government support for a second doctor.

Band spokesman Bill Cranmer said the band still wants a full public inquiry into the problems that are killing its people.

McClelland later met separately with band representatives on their reserve at one end of this community of 1,800 which stretches along one side of three-mile-long Cormorant Island, just off the northeast tip of Vancouver Island.

The moves he announced were the provincial government's response to the race-tinged health-care controversy that put this isolated community into the national spotlight earlier this year.

After 11-year-old Nimpkish Indian Renee Smith died of a ruptured appendix in the care of Dr. Jack Pickup, the community's only doctor, there were allegations that Pickup had a drinking problem and that Indians were treated as second-class citizens.

Pickup was found negligent in the girl's death. A subsequent investigation by the B.C. College of Phyicians and Surgeons found the 61-year-old doctor competent.

Wedlidi Speck, assistant manager of the band which accounts for about half of the village's population, said the meeting with McClelland was fruitless. He denied their request for a full public inquiry into Pickup specificially and health care generally, Speck said.

McClelland has said that such an inquiry would only lead to claims and counterclaims, creating ill feeling instead of solving any problems.

McClelland said:

—A new 15-bed unit will be built to replace St. George's Hospital, officially classified as a 55-bed hospital but operating for some time as a 20-bed unit.

—An alcohol detoxification unit will be set up at St. George's and hospital staff will be given training by the B.C. Drug and Alcohol Commission.

—The government will provide money to help to attract to the area another doctor who would serve both Alert Bay and Port McNeill, site of a new 25-bed unit, on Vancouver Island.

Speck said the announcement of a new hospital to replace St. George's, built ir 1941 and still the largest hospital serving Vancouver Island north of Campbell River, is a smokescreen to hide more serious problems.

"We don't think the hospital is that bad," he said. "What we still need is a better doctor."

Whitecaps rejoice as Mazzei steams

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — At first, an irate Julio Mazzei said he would only talk to New York reporters after his Cosmos lost 2-0 to Vancouver Whitecaps in the first game of their North American Soccer League semi-final.

But it didn't take much prodding for the Cosmos coach to begin a tirade in front of anyone who would listen.

The object of his scorn was the officiating.

"It's disgraceful that a team like the Whitecaps, a good team, need the help from the linesman," he said. "Two goals were offside.

"We are not crying because we know they have a good team that can beat us without linesmen's help. Tonight we stuck to our game plan, we held them. But you cannot hold anybody when the linesman is helping."

Another Cosmos official said the club has sent telegrams to league commissioner Phil Woosnam complaining about officiating in their last three games.

Mazzei's outburst after the game was a continuation of what occurred in the final few minutes, after Vancouver's Trevor Whymark had made it 2-0.

Cosmos defender Eskandarian was given the red card and ejected from the game by referee Peter Johnson after a thigh-high tackle on Vancouver's Kevin Hector. Moments before, he was given the yellow card for two tackles on Ray Lewington.

Eskandarian will have to sit out Saturday's return match in New York, and Vancouver general manager John Best said he would also miss the 30-minute mini game that would be necessary if the Cosmos beat the Whitecaps in the regular game.

Carlos Alberto of the Cosmos, who was also given a yellow card in the closing minutes, was accused by Johnson of spitting on an official as the teams left the field after the game.

Johnson said a report would be filed with the league office, but would not say any more than "Carlos Alberto spat at an official."

Despite the hard feelings, Mazzei said he was confident that New York would retain its composure and blast the Whitecaps Saturday.

"There's no doubt we are going to win both games at home," he said. "We are the best team, we have the best players. New York will be a different game."

Willie Johnston scored the other Whitecap goal in the second half as the Vancouver club pressed relentlessly the entire match before a record soccer crowd of 32,824 at Empire Stadium.

The National Conference winner meets either San Diego Sockers or Tampa Bay Rowdies from the American Conference.

Cosmos seemed content to pack their defence for most of the game and, when they attempted to open up after Johnston's goal, they were unable to cope with the stout Vancouver defenders in front of goalkeeper Phil Parkes.

It was Vancouver's third win this season over the storied Cosmos and their international array of superstars. The Whitecaps, a side made up primarily of former British players, won regular-season games by 4-1 and 4-2 scores.

Budgets keep rolling on Wilson's no-hitter

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — Righthander Dave Wilson kept the door shut with a sparkling no-hit performance to lead defending champion Victoria Budgets to a 2-0 shutout over St. John Alpines of New Brunswick at the Canadian senior "A" men's softball championship tournament today.

Budgets, unbeaten in three games, brought out their heavy artillery to pound Selkirk Steel Kings of Manitoba 7-2 Wednesday.

Wilson, after a little bit of faltering in the opening inning, settled down the rest of the way and finished up with 10 strikeouts and three walks.

Both Victoria runs came in the opening inning when Johnny Green smashed a double to drive in Gordie Fadden, a pickup player from Clearbrook, and Bob Walton, who had both received walks.

On Wednesday, Reg Underwood and Bob Holness provided most of the offensive power. Underwood cracked a two-run homer in the fourth inning and Holness unloaded a three-run job in the fifth.

Dave Ruthowsky shut the door and struck out seven batters to earn the pitching victory after relieving starter Andy Konopacki in the second frame.

Budgets were to face Placentia of Newfoundland at 5 (PDT) tonight.

In other Wednesday action, Ontario edged Saskatchewan 1-0 in a marathon 14-inning struggle, Jim Haley came within one batter of a perfect game by hurling a no-hitter to lead Alberta to a 9-0 victory over Prince Edward Island, Manitoba beat Placentia 1-0, Saskatchewan beat Alberta 1-0 but later lost 1-0 to Ontario in a night game, Placentia beat New Brunswick 2-1, Quebec trounced the Yukon 6-1 and St. John's downed P.E.I., 2-1.

The top two teams from each of the two four-team divisions in the tourney advance to a championship round following round-robin play.

The other four squads will play a consolation round.

Mussel hopes end with Met triumph

It's all over.

Leaving nine men stranded on base, Victoria Mussels bowed 5-3 Wednesday to Grays Harbor Mets and dropped out of playoff contention in the Northwest Baseball League.

The Royal Athletic Park loss allowed Walla Walla Padres to clinch the Northern Division title even though Bellingham Mariners downed Walla Walla 11-6 in another game Wednesday night.

Grays Harbor, firmly lodged in the division cellar, got a bases-empty home run from Bill Chamberlain in the second inning and a controversial, two-run double from Dave Duff in the fifth to spark their offence.

Victoria's Ed Koziol was foiled in the attempt to gain his 10th win. He slipped to 9-3.

Third-baseman John Frietas had four hits for Mussels and drove in one run while the other runs were scored on doubles by Rod Murphy and Nick Belmonte.

Victoria was scheduled to complete its season this afternoon against Grays Harbor.

Nasty vs. Brat in U.S. Open

Times News Services

Nasty versus the Brat.

Ilie Nastase, the fiery Romanian whose antics on the tennis court have enraged officials and enthralled spectators for more than a decade, is set to face John McEnroe, the sport's latest bad boy.

It's the kind of match promoters dream about, and it will take place in the second round of the rain-plagued U.S. Open tennis championships in New York.

When those fireworks take place depends largely on the weather, which played havoc with Wednesday's first-round matches.

After McEnroe and Nastase posted victories early in the day, rain halted play three times. After waiting more than two hours, tournament officials decided to suspend the 10 matches already under way and postpone the other 17. The four night matches also were postponed.

Today's schedule was to open 30 minutes earlier than usual with the completion of matches begun Wednesday. Among them will be a first-round pairing between fifth-seeded Evonne Goolagong of Australia and 21-year-old Kay McDaniel, which was suspended with Goolagong leading 6-7, 6-4, 4-2.

McEnroe, the mercurial 20-year-old who is seeded third, whipped Pavel Slozil of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-2, 6-4 in his first-round match. Nastase, now 33 and unranked but still capable of flurries of brilliant shotmaking, was leading 7-5, 7-5 against Leo Palin when the Finn was forced to retire because of a pulled thigh muscle.

"I think Nastase was a great player," said McEnroe. "But I don't think he's a great player anymore. I'm sure he's going to try to bug me, so it should be an interesting match."

Nastase laughed when he heard that.

At Toronto, South American players knocked off two seeded opponents in second-round play at an international junior tennis tournament. Raul Viver of Ecuador upset Martin Wostenholme of Ottawa, the eighth seed in the boys' singles, 6-3, 6-3 and Karen Dewis of London, Ont., the No. 6 seed in the girl's singles, was beaten 6-0, 6-2 by Pilar Vasquez of Peru.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana Pacers of the National Basketball Association have agreed to give Boston Celtics a third-round pick in the 1980 draft as compensation for signing free-agent Frankie Sanders.

Ottawa's new man enjoys great debut

OTTAWA (CP) — Martin Cox ignited his Rough Rider teammates and a near capacity crowd in his first Canadian Football League game by scoring three touchdowns in a 31-29 win over Montreal Alouettes Wednesday.

"I was so fired up. I hadn't played in a ball game for a long time and I wanted to do well," Cox said after his first game as a professional.

Until the speedy wide receiver outran a Montreal defender for a 64-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Condredge Holloway early in the second quarter, it appeared Montreal was in for an easy win.

Instead the game turned into a wide-open thriller that left the 31,672 fans screaming right to the last play when a 40-yard field goal attempt by Montreal's Don Sweet went wide ending Montreal's hope for a tie.

That would have given the Als sole possession of first place in the Eastern Conference. They remain tied with Toronto Argonauts, each with eight points while the Riders move to within one point of the front runners.

Cox came to the Riders last week after being released by New England Patriots of the National Football League. Coach George Brancato had been interested in the greyhound-lean youngster since last year when he starred in the annual Can-Am Bowl game as the representative of Vanderbilt.

Holloway's first pass to Cox was picked off by defensive back Jim Burrow and returned for a 30-yard touchdown. But that was the last time the Montreal defence was even close as Cox went on to make seven catches for 180 yards before the final whistle.

'Hot-dogging' days are over

Times News Services

Now that the East Division race has swung into high gear in baseball's National League, Ellis Valentine of Montreal Expos plans to get serious.

"All that hot-dogging is over," said Valentine, after his three-run home run in the sixth inning Wednesday was the margin of victory in Montreal's 5-3 decision against the slumping Houston Astros.

"I just want to help the ball club win," added the controversial right fielder, who has been in and out of the good graces of team management for lackadaisical play at various times this season.

But there was nothing sluggish about his 21st blast of the season that carried the Expos from a 2-1 deficit and provided them with a lead that starter Bill Lee, 13-10, and reliever Elias Sosa never relinquished.

Trailing 1-0 after Niekro's run-scoring single in the second inning, Montreal pulled even on Larry Parrish's 22nd homer of the year in the fifth. It was the 13th home run for Parrish since the All-Star break.

The victory kept Expos three games behind the leading Pittsburgh Pirates, who clipped Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1 when Phil Garner's two-run double keyed a four-run eighth inning. Bert Blyleven, 11-4, pitched the first seven innings for Pittsburgh and Kent Tekulve worked out of an eighth-inning jam to preserve the victory with his 24th save.

ALSO IN BASEBALL: Baltimore, California, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Houston were given permission by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn to print tickets for the league playoffs and the World Series . . . None of the five teams was involved in post-season play last year . . . Pittsburgh reversed a move that would have sent relief pitcher Joe Coleman to Portland and recalled pinch-hitter Dale Berra from the minor league team . . . The move cannot be made under baseball's rules and the club was not aware of it when the changes were announced.

McCormack hits double

Peter McCormack emerged as the only double winner Wednesday in the finals of the City of Victoria open junior tennis championships at the Racquet Club.

McCormack won the boys' 14-and-under singles with a 6-2, 6-3 conquest of Neale den Otter and beat Paul Buck 6-1, 6-3 in the 17-and-under final.

Jill Glowicki captured the 17-and-under girls title with a 6-3, 6-1 win over Patryce Walther; Donna Pryde defeated Siobhan McLachlin to earn 13-and-under girls' laurels and Matt Hern rallied for a 6-7, 6-4, 6-0 win over Bob Donaldson in the boys' 11-and-under final.

Canadian into fours

BLED, Yugoslavia (AP-Reuter) — Sculler Brian Thorne of St. Catharines advanced today to the semifinals in the lightweight singles event at opening of the world rowing championships.

Thorne placed second in his elimination heat behind Jose Ortega of Spain who was timed in seven minutes 31.87 seconds. Thorne clocked 7:34.83.

The Canadian entry in the lightweight coxless fours placed last in its heat and will get a second chance to qualify in the repechages Friday. The all-Ontario boat, with Bill and Tom Earle, Jack Smith and Dan Charlton, placed behind British, West German and Danish boats in their heat.

In a later lightweight four heat, an American boat was disqualified after a one-stroke false start.

Regatta officials ruled that the four had arrived two minutes late and their late arrival was counted as a false start.

City golfers in contention

EDMONTON (CP) — Unheralded Janice Vining of Don Mills, Ont., carded a seven-over-par 83 Wednesday at the Mayfair Golf Club to take the first-round lead in the ninth Canadian senior women's golf championship.

Vining, who plays to a 10 handicap, held a one-shot lead on Diana Weeks of the host club and Lorraine MacKenzie of Vancouver. Anne Tachan of Winnipeg finished the day fourth at 85.

Margaret Todd of Victoria, a two-time winner of this event, scrambled a lot in winding up with an 88 which left her five strokes off the pace and in a 10th-place tie. She needed 46 strokes on the first nine.

However, the three other members of the B.C. team were all in contention. Lorraine MacKenzie of Vancouver was tied for second place with 84 and Joan Lawson of Victoria and Colleen McCulloch of Vancouver were both at 86. Lawson got off to a bad start with a 47 on the first nine but rallied to come in with a 39.

Those three efforts gave B.C. a tie with Ontario for the lead in the team competition. Manitoba was third.

B.C. juniors trail by three strokes

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rick Sepp of Mount Hope, Ont., shot a two-under-par 70 Wednesday to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the Canadian Junior Golf Championships at Breezy Bend Country Club.

Bill Swartz of Brampton, the early leader, and Rob Tod of Winnipeg are tied for second at 72.

Ontario holds the lead in interprovincial competition with a team total of 225. British Columbia is second at 228 and Manitoba is third with 230.

Sepp shot a one-over par 37 on the first nine holes he played but he overtook Tod and Swartz with a three-under-par 33 on the next nine.

Glen Heuser and Grant Barnes of Kelowna and Keith Westover of Vancouver each shot 75 to lead the B.C. contingent.

Rick Gibson of Vancouver, Darryl James of Kamloops, Brian O'Keefe of Vernon, Glenn Bannister of Abbotsford and Neil Crofts of Vancouver were in a large group at 76 and Lanny Sawchuk of Victoria shot 77.

Fitness pays off for Dutch squad

VANCOUVER (CP) — Top-seeded Netherlands, led by the superior speed and stick-handling finesse of its forward line, scored three unanswered goals in the second half to defeat West Germany 4-1 Wednesday and win the women's world field hockey championship.

West Germany was ranked second heading into the 12-day round-robin tournament in which 18 teams competed.

"Germany played very well throughout the game but I think they were a bit afraid of us and our superior fitness got them in the second half," said Maria Mattheussens-Fikkers, captain of the Netherlands team.

Earlier Wednesday, the surprising United States upset Australia 1-0 in sudden-death overtime to give the 11th ranked Americans third place. Australia, seeded sixth, finished in fourth place while Wales defeated England 2-1 and finished fifth.

England, seeded fifth, dropped one position to finish the tournament in sixth spot.

Five of the teams competing here will gain berths in next year's Olympic games in Moscow, where women's field hockey will be included for the first time. The host Soviet team has already been assured a berth:

An international committee will select the teams on the basis of their record in recognized tournaments between 1976 and December, 1979. The tournament here was the last major competition scheduled before the committee hands down its decision, expected early next year.

Scotland, ranked 10th, blanked ninth-seeded Canada 3-0 to finish seventh while Canada moved up one position to finish eighth.

"I am delighted with the performance of my players," said Canadian coach Marina van der Merwe of Toronto. "To move from 15th ranking to eighth in one year is a remarkable feat.

"We're working on improving our style in general and the Canadian potential is very good, particularly considering much of the country is covered in snow most of the year."

Caps square series, K&R wraps up another

Ross Johnson and Bob Butler combined talents Wednesday to lead Capital Builders to a 4-0 victory over Victoria Athletics in Heywood Men's Softball League play.

The Heywood Park decision squared the best-of-five final series 1-1 with the third game scheduled for 6:30 tonight.

Johnson pitched a three-hitter to earn the victory and drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a single. Butler opened scoring with a solo home run.

At Central Park, K&R Sooke pounded Labatts 12-0 to win the three-team Stuffy McGinnis Men's League consolation playoff series and advance to the British Columbia senior "C" championship this weekend in Lumby.

Sooke finished the round-robin affair with a 2-1-1 record, Labatts were second at 2-2-0 and Strandlund Brothers third at 1-2-1.

Mel Nelson fired the three-hitter for the pitching decision and third-baseman Norm Goudie led the attack with a three-run homer in the fourth inning.

CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT

Pursuant to Section 766AA of the Municipal Act, the following text of By-law No. 598, cited as "Zoning By-law, Planning Area No. 1, Amendment By-law No. 28, 1979" is hereby published as at third reading and prior to submission to the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

A BY-LAW TO AMEND BY-LAW NO. 282, BEING "ZONING BY-LAW (SOOKE), 1976"

1. By-law No. 282, cited as "Zoning By-law (Sooke) 1976" is amended as follows:
   A. By adding after SCHEDULE 3 — "RESIDENTIAL ZONE R-1" the following new schedule:
   SCHEDULE 3A — VILLAGE RESIDENTIAL 2 — VR2
   Permitted Uses:
   In addition to uses permitted in Section 5.14 of this by-law, the following uses and no other shall be permitted in Village Residential 2 Zone:
   (a) one one-family dwelling or one two-family dwelling;
   (b) schools, churches, community halls or centres, libraries, fire halls and community care facilities;
   (c) parks, playgrounds and golf courses;
   (d) home occupations, subject to the provisions of Section 5.4.
   Regulations
   (a) Yard requirements:
      (i) All buildings shall be located on the site to permit a minimum front yard of 7.5 m, minimum side yard of 3m and a minimum rear yard of 10 m;
      (ii) Notwithstanding anything contained in this subsection, accessory buildings may be erected in a residential zone subject to the provisions in Section 5.8 of this by-law;
      (iii) All yards shall be landscaped and maintained in a neat and tidy manner.
   (b) Height: No building shall exceed 9 m in height;
   (c) Site coverage: The maximum site coverage shall be 25 per cent of the parcel of land on which buildings and structures are located.
   Minimum Site Areas
      (i) The minimum site area for a one-family dwelling or a two-family dwelling shall be 0.2 ha.
      (ii) On parcels in Village Residential 2 Zones that are shown on a plan duly filed in the Land Registry Office prior to the passing of this By-law which has less than the minimum area required in subjection (i), one or two units of living accommodation are permitted on each such parcel if the method by which sewage is to be disposed of is satisfactory to the Medical Health Officer.
   B. By adding under PART III — ZONING DISTRICTS, Section 3.1, the following: under "Short Form" the letters and figure "VR2" and under "Zone Designation" the words "Village Residential" after the word "Residential".
   C. By deleting from the Rural Zone and adding to the "Village Residentail 2" Zone — VR2, Lots 1 and 2, Section 6, Plan 10900, Sooke Land District, as shown on Plan No. 29 attached and forming part of this by-law.

A copy of the complete by-law may be viewed during normal working hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, holidays excepted, at the offices of the Capital Regional District, 524 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C.

NFL quarterback joins B.C. Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quarterback Mike Nott has been placed on a five-day trial by British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Nott turned professional in 1975 with the NFL Kansas City Chiefs and in 1977 joined the CFL Saskatchewan Roughriders for part of the season. He was out of football last year.

ABC bugging report raises hornets' nest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of the Carter administration are going to unusual lengths to deny a broadcast report that U.S. intelligence agents bugged UN Ambassador Andrew Young's apartment and knew in advance he was going to meet a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Robert Havel, a spokesman for the U.S. justice department, termed the ABC News report "absolute nonsense" after it was broadcast Wednesday night.

A few hours later, White House press secretary Jody Powell took the unusual step of personally telephoning news agencies to issue an emphatic denial "on the president's behalf and with his approval."

Word of Young's July 26 meeting with PLO representative Zehdi Labib Terzi at the New York residence of the Kuwaiti ambassador to the UN created a furore that led to Young's resignation. U.S. policy forbids negotiations with the PLO until it recognizes Israel's existence. ABC said intelligence heard him set up the meeting.

Violence arouses diplomats

KAMPALA (UPI) — Underscoring the virtual breakdown of law and order in Uganda, foreign diplomats have demanded greater military protection for their embassies and families and indicated they might quit the troubled country if they did not get it.

The demands followed another spate of killings in Kampala, including the death of a British professor and an attack on an Italian businessman's home.

The lawlessness has generated local outrage as well. Sam Nguba, chairman of the Uganda Law Society, was quoted as saying, "The breakdown in law and order is now worse than under Idi Amin. There is shooting every night in Kampala."

A diplomatic pullout, which could also mean an end to foreign aid, would seriously undermine the government of President Godfrey Binaisa, who already faces growing internal and external opposition.

Hundreds of persons reportedly have been killed since Amin was toppled in April and the security of the city turned over to Tanzanian occupation troops and members of the Uganda Liberation Army who helped them.

Policemen 'exorcise' farm

TARBES, France (AP) — Apparently succeeding where exorcists failed, gendarmes say they have unravelled the "mystery of the haunted farm."

The affair, which has made headlines in France, began Aug. 6 when mysterious fires began to break out in a farmhouse in the village of Seron, a tiny hamlet in the Pyrenees just south of here.

The fires, 35 in one night alone, seemed to come from nowhere, chewing through curtains, clothing, floor mops, tablecloths, armchairs and windowsills.

Edouard Lahore, 59, the head of the household, said he was mystified.

On that day Michele Josse-Randeau, a 19-year-old who lives with the Lahore family, ran into the farmyard screaming that her blouse was on fire. A charred black hole was opening across her sleeve.

Twenty gendarmes camped in the farmyard, futilely hoping to catch a fire starting. They never did.

Prof. Yves Lignon of the parapsychology laboratory at nearby Toulouse University concluded the fires were not being caused by anything supernatural. He theorized they could be caused by flammable chemicals.

Others suggested they were caused by polluted insects or by laser beams from an army base eight kilometres away.

An exorcist, Father Julien Cazenave, tried unsuccessfully to discover the source of the fires. Other exorcists followed, and on their heels a gaggle of seers, mediums, fortune-tellers and people armed with gauges for detecting ectoplasm.

Behind them came carloads of curiosity seekers.

By Monday, 97 fires had been recorded on the Lahore property, and police were intensively questioning the family.

On Tuesday, after grilling Lahore's son Roger, 29, and Josse-Randeau for 14 hours, police said the two confessed to causing the fires.

The French press has suggested the two were lovers scheming to get the 18th-century farmhouse to themselves by scaring away the other occupants. Police have refused to speculate on a motive.

Pipeline profit rule eased for investors

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. energy regulatory authorities Wednesday announced modified rules to permit increased rates of return for investors in major portions of the long-delayed Alaskan natural gas pipeline.

The changes were called "definitely favorable" by a spokesman of Northwest Alaskan Pipeline Co., major U.S. partner in the giant Canada-U.S. project to move Alaskan gas south through Canada to the lower 48 states. Canadian partner is Foothills Pipelines Ltd. of Calgary.

A major change in the federal Energy Regulatory Commission ruling is a decision to permit sponsors to use a current cost estimate, rather than a total project cost determined in March, 1977, as a basis for setting a sliding scale of returns for investment.

The Northwest spokesman, commenting on the effect of the change, noted the project was estimated in 1977 to cost between $10 billion and $12 billion. But during the last two years, while delays by U.S. regulatory authorities held up a project start, its cost has increased to between $14 billion and $15 billion at least, Northwest estimates.

Northwest intends to go to the capital markets before the end of the year to seek private financing for the pipeline. It will be able to offer a more attractive investment because of the Energy Regulatory Cokmission's ruling, a spokesman said.

The commission also upheld an earlier ruling, made in June, that sets specific percentages for investment rates of return that are intended to allow higher returns if costs are kept in check and decrease if there are cost overruns.

It sets a centre rate of return on investment of 17.5 per cent for Alaskan portions of the pipeline, provided cost overruns don't exceed 30 per cent. The centre rate of return for the so-called northern border portion, running from the Canadian border to Dwight, Ill., would be 15 per cent.

Approximately 25 per cent of the pipeline project's cost is to be covered by equity investment, or ownership. The remaining 75 per cent is to be covered by borrowing.

The decisions Wednesday came at an open meeting of the regulatory commission. A formal written order is to be issued next week.

The decisions about rates of return cover only the Alaskan and northern border, or so-called eastern leg, section of the pipeline. Still to come is a decision about returns on investment in the western leg.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — While Francis Coppola underwent his Herculean task of recreating the Vietnam war on film, his wife Eleanor was quietly writing notes about the entire experience.

She had no thought of publishing them, but her husband urged her to do so. Which seems odd, since her writings disclose his breakdown during the filming and aftermath of Apocalypse Now, as well as the disintegration of their marriage.

Notes, published by Simon and Schuster, is remarkably revealing, not only of the travails involved in filming an epic in the far-off Philippines but of the human toll in such an undertaking.

The narrative begins in November, 1975, with telephone calls by Coppola to stars he wanted in his film. Steve McQueen, Al Pacino, James Caan, Jack Nicholson and Robert Redford turned him down. Marlon Brando was elusive.

Trouble began at once. After a week's shooting, Coppola decided to replace the leading man, Harvey Keitel. Martin Sheen was enlisted for the role of Willard. Mrs. Coppola describes a harrowing day when Sheen became so immersed in the character of Willard that he punched a mirror in the middle of the scene.

Coppola kept the camera turning while the actor bled. The crew was "silent and disturbed, emotionally affected by the power of Marty-Willard baring his guts in the room."

Marlon Brando arrived on location very overweight. "Francis and he are struggling with how to change the character in the script," she wrote. "Brando wants to camouflage his weight and Francis wants to play him as a man eating all the time and overindulging."

Midway in the filming, Eleanor reflected: "Something is definitely happening to me and to Francis." She watched helplessly as he became more and more immersed in the difficult production. Among her notes:

Nov. 2, 1976 — "Francis has been in such anguish lately, so angry: Angry with me, angry with his family, angry with everybody that works with him, angry at his life . . ."

Feb. 17, 1978 — "Francis wants to keep his focus on his work. Our personal life is postponed. I must not make emotional waves, not interrupt the preparations for the first screening of the complete assembly of Apocalypse Now. . . ."

April 13, 1978 — "This current situation started during Godfather II. I was on location with Francis, away from San Francisco, my friends and the things that stimulated and interested me at the time. I was so angry with myself, angry that I couldn't just get totally happy focusing on Francis and the making of his film. Someone else did."

Notes ends, like Apocalypse Now itself, with issues seemingly unresolved. No word on how or whether Eleanor and Francis Coppola healed their marriage. They are still together.

Peking duck nauseates Big Bird

"Boy were my arms tired . . ."

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Big Bird flew to China and liked almost everything he encountered, except the Peking duck.

The Sesame Street character — known as Carroll Spinney when he isn't impersonating a giant bird or Oscar the Grouch — was part of the company Bob Hope took to China for taping of his The Road to China special that will be broadcast on NBC Sept. 16.

"I like that place," Spinney said in an interview, talking in his Big Bird character voice. "It was a long way from here. Boy, were my arms tired, but we saved air fare."

Big Bird and the rest of the troupe — including ballet superstar Mikhail Baryshnikov, country music singer Crystal Gale and the pantomime team of Shields and Yarnell, visited Peking and Shanghai during the three-week trip.

"Mr. Hope was there a week before we got there," Spinney said.

"It was probably the friendliest place an American can go," Big Bird continued:

"When anyone found out we were Americans, they were twice as delighted. Of course, they didn't know us.

"The only one they had ever heard of before was Baryshnikov and they flocked to see him.

"They also particularly liked Shields and Yarnell because they're pantomimists and don't need language to be understood."

Asked how the Chinese responded to Big Bird, he replied:

"I am eight feet tall and very bright yellow. I didn't see anybody else around like me. I seemed to attract a huge crowd. I guess they noticed I was different."

Big Bird, in turn, enjoyed the friendliness, the "1938-ish" hospitality of the Ching Chiang Hotel in Shanghai, the inexpensive shopping.

There was one problem, encountered at a banquet. He liked the food, but . . .

"I avoided the Peking duck," Big Bird said indignantly.

"I am not a cannibal. He was standing up in his plate, even if he was well browned. It was a really tragic sight and I had to look away a lot."

Silent flicks series

Performances are free and will take place Fridays from Sept. 7 to Sept. 21 from 12:05 p.m. until 1 p.m.

On Sept. 7 two early westerns will be shown: Bronco Billy's Capture (1912) and The Battle of at Elederbrush Gulch (1913), starring Lillian Gish.

The Sept. 14 film showing features the work of comedians Charles Chaplin, The Cure (1917); Harold Lloyd, Haunted Spooks (1920); and Buster Keaton, Cops (1920).

The last noon program of the series Sept. 21 is a screening of clips from the movies of Louis Feuillade, Cecil B. DeMille and Sergei Eisenstein.

Films of the silent years will continue in November with the movies of Valentino, Lon Chaney, Douglas Fairbanks as well as D. W. Griffith's Birth of a Nation. These showings will take place Fridays at 2 p.m.

Yogurt teaching Klugman French

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — Jack Klugman speaking French? Sure, and next you'll see Muhammad Ali dancing with a ballet company.

No, really, you'll see the actor in a commercial these days pushing Yoplait yogurt, which has its origins in France.

Klugman can be seen seated in a kitchen trying the product. An off-camera announcer says: "The yogurt of France is called Yoplait. Some Americans don't know about it . . . yet."

He goes on to say that when Americans do try it they find it different and creamy, with real fruit. He adds: "It's just amazing what happens when a real American gets a little taste of French culture."

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
3 NT

Opening lead — jack of spades.

Let's assume you're West and lead the jack of spades against three notrump. Declarer wins the jack with the ace and plays the three of clubs. You naturally follow low and dummy wins with the queen. South next cashes all his hearts and spades, scoring nine tricks all told. Only then do you realize that you could have defeated the contract by rising with the ace of clubs at trick two and playing the king and another diamond.

If you are not inclined to be self-critical, you could promptly dismiss the hand from your mind and go on to the next deal. You might also argue that this type of defense is much easier to find when you see all four hands instead of only two.

But if you study the situation more closely, you discover that going up with the ace of clubs and shifting to the K-5 of diamonds is not as crazy as it seems. In fact, it's the only sensible thing to do!

It is obvious from the bidding and from South's play at trick two that he can cash five heart tricks at will. He cannot be missing the ace or queen of hearts or he would be tackling hearts at once instead of clubs. Furthermore, it is obvious that declarer has three spade winners whenever he chooses to take them.

South is therefore known to have eight ready tricks and is trying to steal a ninth at trick two, Your only chance to stop him is to go up with your ace of clubs and shift to a diamond, hoping to hit partner with four or five diamonds headed by the A-Q-10.

The odds are certainly against finding East with this precise holding, but that is pretty much the only real chance you have to defeat the contract.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, August 31, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Grasp potential, take long-range view, pursue educational project. Travel may be indicated in connection with publishing, spiritual commitment. Elements of time, skill and luck could ride with you. Be versatile — and ask questions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Check details, be specific where money and partnership are concerned. You find way to extricate yourself from situation which was confining and restricted opportunities. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio natives figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on contracts, partnership, marriage. Relationships intensify; you are able to piece together bits of information. Complete story is available — you'll get it and constructively utilize it. Virgo native figures prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on service, basic tasks, dependents, ability to "look out" for yourself. Means keep medical, nutrition resolutions. Family member confides problem. Be diplomatic, don't cast first stone. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure in scenario.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Haze of wishful thinking could cloud judgment. Romance, creativity, clandestine meeting — these crowd exciting agenda. Strive to see situations, persons as they actually are, not merely as you wish they might be.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Practical issues dominate, including past obligations and current responsibilities. Be aware of values, leases and appraisals. Older individual could aid in completing transaction. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently — and so does the number 8.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A relative who appeared to be superficial will display another dimention of character. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. Special message and a short trip could be highlighted. Be versatile without spreading efforts too thin.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New deal could enhance financial potential. Know it, collect needed data. Get to heart of matters, learn about costs and decide what is to be retained or discarded. Original approach wins — be independent in thought and action.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Intuitive intellect is active; follow through on hunch. Lunar cycle is such that you can be at right place at crucial moment. You get proverbial second chance — apparent error can be made to rebound in your favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What had been something to fear may turn out to be a reason for celebration. Circumstances favor your efforts. Accent on dreams, expanded horizon and a multiplicity of opportunities. The number 3 figures prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A dream, if properly interpreted, can prove prophetic. Be alert, aware of subtle nuances. By studying fine print, you locate escape-hatch. Another Aquarian and a Scorpio figure in your intriguing scenario. A wish is transformed into reality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Written material aids you in reaching goal. Be analytical, perceive the "why" of recent events. Member of opposite sex could become a valuable ally. One in position of authority plans to make room for you at top. Gemini native is in picture.

IF AUGUST 31 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are perceptive, creative, resilient, capable of responding well during times of crisis. You are willing to tear down for the ultimate purpose of reconstruction. You are an independent thinker, some claim you are a rebel. You attract a combination of envy and love. You are willing to learn the rules, but you also break them. You were on your own, at least in a psychological sense, at a relatively early age. Circumstances taught you to be independent — you could have been separated from one or both parents during formative years. Aquarius, Scorpio, Leo persons play important roles in your life.

Postal Crown corporation aim of information pickets

Inside postal workers tried to make their case to the public Wednesday when they set up informational pickets at several postal terminals across western Canada.

The largest turnout was in Winnipeg where 50 off-duty postal workers were at the main post office to explain to the public why they want the post office turned into a Crown corporation.

Ed Langelier, technical adviser for the western Canadian wing of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the pickets were part of a drive to bring government attention to union demands:

"The whole organizational structure of the post office is one of the major problems."

Postal officials said normal postal functions would not be disrupted by the pickets.

Shawnigan parents get bus meeting

Education ministry officials have agreed to meet Shawnigan Lake area parents to discuss school transportation for children.

In return, the council will give share certificates acknowledging that the recipient has donated BCRIC shares to the council to help it in its educational campaigns.

The share for share scheme is part of the council's current fund-raising drive to support its educational messages about the environment and energy conservation.

Publicity and education officer Marcus Davies said the council, because of the success of its first recycling book with teachers, wants to produce a second book, specifically for junior high school teachers.

The council's general program is to make the public more aware of the need for recycling and energy conservation.

Shrinking

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government workforce shrunk by 3,699 during the year ending June 30, Statistics Canada said Tuesday.

There were 592,947 employees (including the armed forces) at the end of June.

Hydro awards cable contract

A joint contract for $200 million (U.S.) to supply and install 525-kilovolt underwater power cables between Vancouver Island and the mainland has been received by a Norwegian subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. of Toronto and an Italian cable company.

B.C. Hydro awarded the joint contract.

Standard Telefon Og Kabelfabrik, the ITT subsidiary, will make half the necessary power cables in Oslo, Norway. The rest will be manufactured by Industrie Pirelli S.p.A., in Italy.

The underwater circuit will extend across the straits of Malaspina and Georgia with overhead sections crossing Texada Island.

Sidney getting back courtroom facilities

B.C. Development Corporation architects are expected at Sidney muncipal hall next week to draw up plans for construction of courtroom facilities.

It will end the expensive system of having all cases from the northern half of the Saanich Peninsula heard in Victoria courts.

Sidney once operated its own court but in 1975 the provincial government decided all legal proceedings originating in Sidney and the surrounding area were to be heard by Victoria courts.

The move was opposed by police, social workers and Sidney council.

The population of the area is about 22,000.

United front on McKenzie scheme

Residents on both sides of the planned McKenzie extension are joining forces to fight the highways ministry, a spokesman said today.

George Van't Haaff, of 710 Violet, said the groups will met early next week to discuss strategy.

But he refused to even hint what their plan of action might be.

But Van't Haaff did say the immediate goal is to meet Highways Minister Alex Fraser.

Both sides claim to have been given the brush-off by the highways ministry and Saanich.

They say a preliminary highway design endorsed recently by Saanich council does not have the approval of any residents on east or west side of the alignment.

Howowners are opposed to the newest set of preliminary drawings, which shifted the highway route in their direction after Marigold Co-op complained it was too close to the development.

Van't Haaff said the homeowners found out about the plan change by reading the Times.

"The highways ministry promised to keep us informed, but they haven't," he said.

Homeowners are concerned the new route will devaluate property, destroy existing parkland, and cause the unnecessary expropriation of homes.

On the other hand, Marigold Co-op spokesman Daniela Gauvin said Wednesday the co-op isn't satisfied the route is far enough away.

The co-op also wants highways to promise it will leave a buffer zone of trees and build a protective wall, she said.

Van't Haaff said the homeowners association understands Marigold's concerns and is not angry at the co-op.

"They're our friends and neighbors. Instead of fighting we should pool our resources," he said.

Van't Haaff said he is sure they can work out a satisfactory compromise. Both sides basically want the same thing — assurances of safety, noise and pollution, he said.

Faith in Saanich disappeared after a letter protesting the new route and delivered by hand to the mayor's office was ignored by council.

Council approved the preliminary design without notifying the residents beforehand so they could attend the meeting, he said.

CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT

Pursuant to Section 766AA of the Municipal Act, the following text of By-law No. 597, cited as "Zoning By-law, Planning Area No. 1, Amendment By-law No. 27, 1979" is hereby published as at third reading and prior to submission to the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

A BY-LAW TO AMEND BY-LAW No. 226, "OFFICIAL COMMUNITY PLAN (SOOKE) BY-LAW, 1975"

The Board of the Capital Regional District in open meeting assembled, and pursuant to Section 796A of the Municipal Act, enacts as follows:

1. By-law No. 226, cited as "Official Community Plan (Sooke) By-law, 1975" is amended as follows:

   PLAN MAP

   That the plan map of the "Official Community Plan (Sooke) By-law, 1975" be amended by deleting from the Industrial designation and adding to the Existing Development designation that area as shown on Plan No. 28 attached and forming part of this by-law.

A copy of the complete by-law may be viewed during normal working hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, holidays excepted, at the offices of the Capital Regional District, 524 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C.

Ferry peace prospects dim

Prospects for a contract settlement between the British Columbia Ferry Corp. and its employees appear doubtful but ferry workers promised to hold off any strike action until after the Labor Day weekend.

Negotiators for the corporation and the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union continued negotiations today with mediator Fred Geddes, union president Shirley Mathieson said.

"However, we are not optimistic that we can reach a settlement, but there will be no strike during the Labor Day weekend."

The holiday weekend is traditionally one of the busiest on the ferries, already congested with summer holiday traffic. Almost all 26 ferries in the fleet are working close to capacity.

The 2,600-member ferry workers union has threatened to launch rotating strike action to back its contract demands, but a legal strike or lockout cannot occur until Geddes withdraws and reports to Labor Minister Allan Williams.

The union served 72-hour strike notice last week, allowing it to walk out, if the mediator has reported out, anytime during the 90 days starting last Friday.

The provincial government does have legislation, however, providing for a cooling-off period, a back-to-work order and binding arbitration of the final settlement.

Wages, sick leave and use of casual employees are among major issues being discussed. The last contract expired July 31.

E&N schedule changed

An adjustment in the E&N railway passenger service due to a construction project will be in effect starting Sept. 7, a CP Rail official said today.

On that day, the normal morning railiner service will depart from Victoria but the south bound afternoon train will terminate at Langford.

From here passengers will transfer to charter buses for the remainder of the trip to the city.

On the following day, Saturday, service from Victoria to Langford will be by charter buses, leaving the Victoria E&N station at the regular departure time of 8:15 a.m. At Langford passengers will transfer to the train for the remainder of the trip.

The service will return to normal in the afternoon. The train will operate through to Victoria.

Pierre Franey

the 60-minute gourmet

One of the oddest cooking myths is the notion that a souffle is the most fragile of foods and, therefore, one of the most difficult to prepare. There seems to be a belief that it will collapse like a pierced balloon if the oven door is opened or if there is a jarring of the oven rack.

That is nonsense and so is that old wives' tale that a souffle must be served at some magic moment. Tastes in texture vary where souffles are concerned. I happen to like souffles that are quite moist (although cooked) in the centre. Others prefer a "drier" interior texture, a point that comes about through prolonged cooking.

While it is true that a souffle must be taken from the oven and served immediately (preferably within seconds), a souffle can remain in the oven for five minutes or so between the moment when it could be pronounced "ready to serve" and when it must be taken from the oven or be overcooked. The basics are simple.

Take a cheese souffle, for example, the best-known and probably the best-liked of all main course souffles. It consists simply of making a simple white sauce to which cubed or grated cheese is added. Egg yolks (plus cornstarch mixed with water) are added to give it body, and stiffly beaten egg whites are folded in. For most home cooks, this is the "tricky" part. The best method to fold in the whites is to stir in half the beaten whites with a whisk, fold in the remaining egg whites and pour into a prepared dish. Bake and serve.

Souffles can be served as a first course, main course or dessert. To some, the cheese souffle I outline here may not seem substantial as a main course; therefore, to go with it, I offer a ham in a cream sauce. After the souffle is put in the oven, there is ample time to prepare it.

Souffle au Fromage

(Cheese souffle)

¼ pound Swiss or, preferably, gruyere cheese
2 cups milk
3 tablespoons, 2 teaspoons butter
6 large eggs
4 tablespoons flour
Salt and ground pepper to taste
⅛ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
Pinch of cayenne pepper
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
¼ cup finely grated Parmesan cheese
Ham in cream sauce (see recipe), optional.

1. Preheat the oven to 375° F.

2. Grate the cheese or cut it into tiny cubes. There should be about three-quarters of a cup. Set aside.

3. Bring the milk just to the boil without boiling.

4. Use two teaspoons butter to grease a five-cup souffle dish. Set the dish aside.

5. Separate egg yolks and whites. Put whites into a mixing bowl.

6. Melt remaining three tablespoons butter in a saucepan. Add the flour, stirring with a wire whisk. When blended and smooth, add the hot milk; stir rapidly with the whisk. Add salt, pepper, nutmeg and cayenne and cook, stirring rapidly, about five minutes.

7. Blend the cornstarch and water and add it, stirring rapidly.

8. Remove from the heat and add the yolks, stirring rapidly. Pour and scrape the mixture into a large mixing bowl. Add the grated Parmesan cheese. Stir to blend.

9. Beat the whites until stiff. Add half the whites to the sauce and stir in with the whisk. Add remaining whites and grated or cubed cheese. Fold this in with a plastic or rubber spatula. Fold over and around, top to bottom, until the whites are incorporated.

10. Pour and scrape the souffle mixture into the prepared bowl. Place in the oven and bake 20 minutes. Serve, if desired, with the ham in cream sauce.

Yield: Four servings.

(Ham in cream sauce)

½ pound boiled ham in one piece
2 tablespoons, 1 teaspoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
⅛ teaspoon finely grated nutmeg
Salt and ground pepper to taste
1 tablespoon finely chopped shallots
3 tablespoons dry sherry wine.

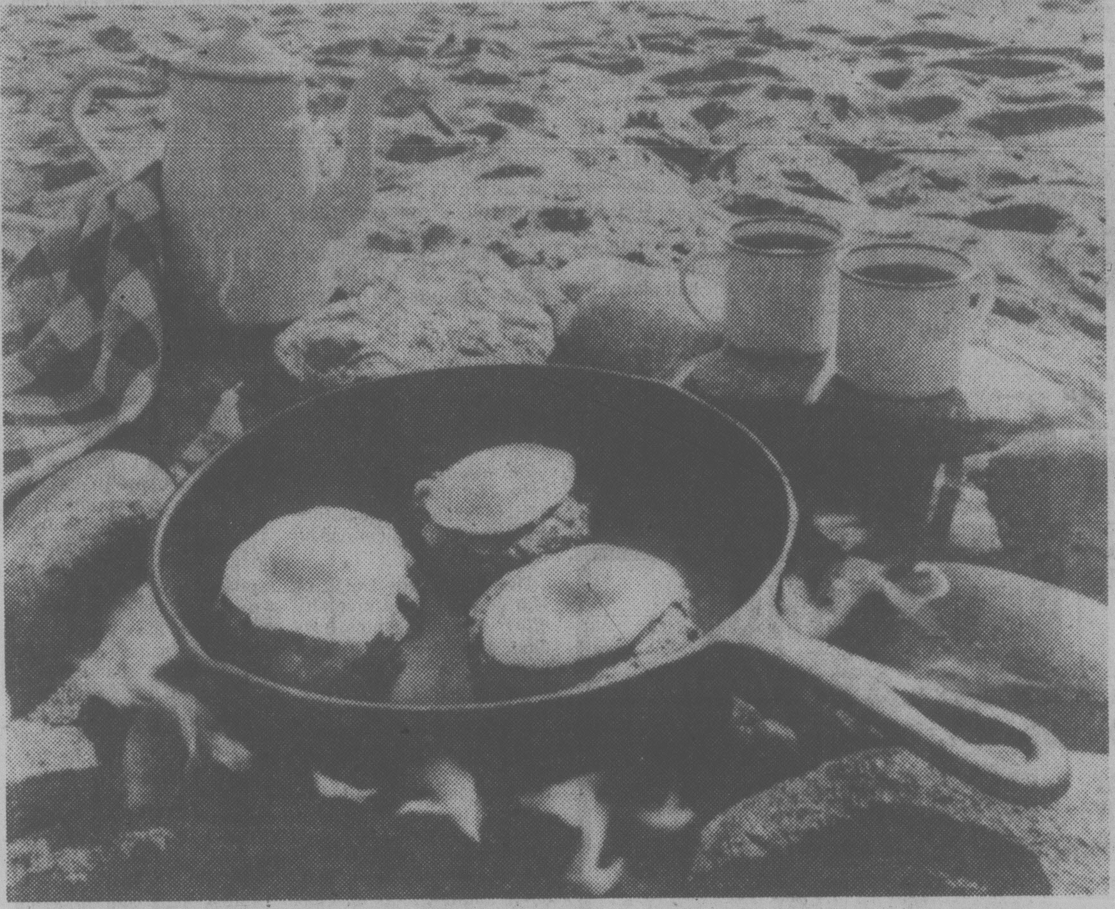
1. Cut the ham into half-inch or slightly smaller cubes. There should be slightly more than two and one-half cups. Set aside.

2. Heat two tablespoons butter in a saucepan and add the flour, stirring with a wire whisk. When blended, add the milk, stirring rapidly with the whisk. Add the nutmeg, salt and pepper to taste. Let cool, stirring occasionally, about five minutes.

3. Meanwhile, heat the remaining teaspoon butter in a saucepan and add the ham. Cook about 10 minutes, stirring, and add the shallots. Cook and stir briefly. Add the sherry. Heat through.

4. Add the cream sauce and turn off the heat. Serve with cheese souffle, on toast or put to any desired use.

Yield: Four servings.



Delicious taste over campfire

Whether you're camping or spending a day at the beach, this simple, economical dinner will be a hit. It's easy to prepare, costs just pennies a serving, and tastes delicious cooked over an open fire.

EGGS 'N' HASH

1 12-ounce can corned beef
1 small onion, chopped
1 cup diced, cooked potatoes
5 eggs
½ tsp. pepper
butter or oil

Combine corned beef, onions, potatoes, 1 egg and pepper. Heat butter or oil in frying pan and fry patties lightly on one side. Turn patties and make a depression in the centre of each. Break an egg into each depression. Add about 1 tbsp. of water to the pan, cover tightly and cook until egg is done to desired degree.

If preferred, eggs may be fried separately, then placed on top of browned, hash patties. Makes four servings.

Dr. Jean Mayer
Dr. Johanna Dwyer

Hyperactivity is a behavior disorder in which a child — usually a boy — has learning difficulties and behavior problems, is immature for his years, has a short attention span and difficulty in getting along with other children. Further, such a child appears to be restless or overactive, largely because his behavior is irrelevant to what he is supposed to be doing.

Most parents and teachers know that all children on one occasion or another exhibit such traits. As a result, the diagnosis of true hyperactivity can be made only by trained observers who estimate that about five per cent of primary school children have severe enough problems to require a physician's help.

About three-quarters of these youngsters can be helped by a combination of drugs and psychotherapy. But this leaves a few for whom this therapy does not seem to offer much assistance.

Early in the 1970s, Dr. Benjamin Feingold, former chief of the department of allergy at the Kaiser Permanente Medical Center in San Francisco, developed a diet treatment which attempted to eliminate certain food chemicals, among them artificial colors and flavors and naturally-occurring salicylates. The theory behind the diet is that some children may be born with a special sensitivity to these substances, or, conversely, that they are so common in our food supply that they eventually develop an allergic reaction. In either case, the result is hyperactive behavior.

Observing that 30 to 50 per cent of a group of hyperkinetic children he had placed on this diet showed a marked improvement after a few weeks, Feingold urged that it be independently tested.

Since Feingold's first report, various studies have been undertaken, including, recently, a number of so-called "double-blind challenge studies." Such studies, used for patients who appear to be suffering from allergies, test whether a suspected allergen is actually the culprit.

They are also used to try to pin down the effects of mood-altering drugs. The patient is put on a diet that lacks the suspected substance and is carefully observed. From time to time and without the knowledge of either the patient or the observer, the suspected offender is reintroduced to "challenge" a response. In the case of the Feingold theory, the "challenge substance" is food coloring.

Four such studies have recently been reported. The results vary, as in all the investigations so far.

In two studies, Drs. Keith Connor and Charles Goyette of the University of Pittsburgh concluded that some children are indeed sensitive to food dyes and that their attention is impaired immediately after eating foods containing food colors. A second series of studies done at Prince of Wales Children's Hospital in Sydney, Australia, by Dr. F. Levy and his colleagues revealed similar results. There were significant reductions in symptoms when children were placed on an additive-free diet.

Levy and his group, however, feel that such studies need to be duplicated before definitive conclusions can be reached.

Drs. J. P. Healy and C. G. Matthews at the University of Wisconsin fed nine boys diets identical in taste and appearance, but without food colors. Then, they switched to a diet with normal amounts, as estimated by the Food and Drug Administration. Eight out of the nine, however, failed to respond to the color-added foods.

The Wisconsin group believes that, while there may be a small group of children adversely affected by color additives, food colors in themselves are not generally the cause of hyperactivity.

Finally, a just-published study done by Drs. James Swanson and M. Kinsbourne at the Toronto Sick Children's Hospital concluded that the level of food color may be the important factor, with large doses affecting learning ability. They point out, however, that their experiments do not demonstrate the Feingold diet works, as their study tested what happened when colors were introduced in high amounts, not what happened when they were removed from the diet.

So where do we stand now?

First, it seems from all the studies that only some children respond to dietary alterations or seem to get worse if food colors are given to them. In this small group the diet does seem to help. In a portion of this group of younger children, behavior also seems to worsen when dyes are added immediately after tha challenge food has been eaten.

If further studies bear this out, such children should be identified so that they can be helped. At present, the only way to do this is with a series of careful and time-consuming tests by psychiatrists and psychologists.

When the food color elimination diet is given with careful dietary instructions and a nutritionist's guidance on food choices, the children seem to be able to stay in good nutritional condition. However, this might not be the case if a child is put on the diet by his parents without some expert advice.

The bottom line is that we are still not sure that diet is the answer; it certainly is not the answer for all children. Moreover, even if diet can help some who fail to respond to drugs or other treatments, none of the experts who have worked on the problem has suggested that parents abandon professional guidance and attempt to treat the child with diet on their own. Many feel that combination therapy offers the best hope of success.

Therefore, we would urge parents of diagnosed hyperkinetic children to continue to discuss and work with the professionals and to avoid changes in either drugs or diet without consultation and evaluations from a physician. If dietary changes are recommended, careful follow-up and evaluation are especially important.

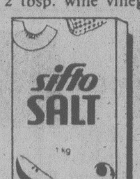
Yes...I'm happy to say that this beautiful booklet is a very simple step-by-step guide that tells you all you need to know about making Cucumber Pickles, Relishes, Chutneys, Sauces and Ketchups. My friends at SIFTO are well aware of the need in this age of spiraling inflation to keep a careful watch over our food dollars and this booklet is just the answer. Simply send a $1.00 cheque or money order to The Pampered Pickle, Department A, P.O. Box 7213, Postal Station A, Montreal, Quebec H3C 3Z2. *Registered trademark.



Cauliflower Salad with Chives and Capers. 1 head cauliflower; 6 pimiento stuffed olives; 4 pitted ripe olives; 3 tbsp. olive or vegetable oil; 2 tbsp. wine vinegar; 1 tbsp. capers; 1 tbsp. chopped parsley; 1 tsp. SIFTO® Salt; freshly ground black pepper; curly lettuce leaves. Wash cauliflower and cut into flowerets. Cook in 1 inch of boiling salted water 6-7 minutes or until just tender. Drain well. Place in a shallow dish. Cut olives lengthwise into fine strips and add to cauliflowerets. In small bowl mix remaining ingredients except lettuce. Spoon over cauliflowerets; cover and refrigerate several hours, basting occasionally with marinade. To serve, line a salad bowl with lettuce leaves. Fill with cauliflower. Spoon olives and dressing over flowerets. 4 Servings. SIFTO® Salt where all good food begins.

YOUR HEALTH

by L. L. Coleman, MD

Rejection risk's nil with your own blood

I'm going to the hospital for an operation on my back in about three months. I have been told to come in twice before then to have some blood removed in case I need it for a transfusion. Wouldn't this weaken me? Wouldn't it be better if I used someone else's blood? — Mr. D. F.

DEAR MR. F.:

Blood from outside sources has been used for a long time for patients who need a transfusion. But recently, in some communities, surgeons have suggested that patients donate to themselves their own blood in the months prior to surgery.

The blood is kept in cold storage and is designated for the specific use of the patients who have donated it, if and when it is needed during or after surgery. Undoubtedly, one's own blood is the safest and the best for transfusion.

The occasional transfusion reaction that occurs with someone else's blood is thus eliminated. You can be certain that the withdrawal of blood as suggested by your doctor will not weaken you or in any way interfere with your post-operative recovery. If there were any reasons against withdrawing your own blood your doctor would not have recommended it. The body rapidly rebuilds its blood content after blood is donated, either to oneself or to others.

DEAR MR. H.:

A great deal of attention has recently been paid to this idea. Research seems to indicate that a tendency towards the formation of ulcers may be inherited.

There is a substance secreted in the stomach known as "pepsinogen," along with hydrochloric acid. In an interesting way, it has been determined that excess production of pepsinogen may be a hereditary trait. It has also been found that people with high levels of pepsinogen in the blood may be more prone to ulcer formation.

For those with a family history of ulcers, there are now ways of trying to prevent their formation. Regulation of diet, absence of tobacco and limitation of alcohol intake, and the reduction of psychological stress can undoubtedly be factors in preventing stomach and duodenal ulcers.

With the newer drugs, the threat of complications from ulcers has, in recent years, been remarkably diminished.

Spurs are deposits of calcium in the tendons of the muscles of the heel. They are not considered a form of arthritis. Protection by rubber and foam rubber sponges is essential to avoid further injury to the spur. When the pain cannot be controlled by such means, surgery is simple, safe and effective.

Bonus foods easily copied

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bonuses offered by homemade convenience and specialty foods and beverages include seasoning to suit your own personal taste, strict control of ingredients, economy and freshness with only nature's additives such as sugar, salt or vinegar.

The following evaluations are based on recipes from Don and Joan Germans' Make Your Own Convenience Foods (Macmillan $14.95 hardcover, $6.95 paper) and Helen Witty and Elizabeth Schneider Colchie's Better Than Store-Bought (Harper £ Row $12.95):

The Germans' American cheese is slightly softer — and consequently harder to slice — than the processed product it imitates, but the flavor is as bland as any finicky child could wish.

On a humid day their processor bread took about 1 cup more flour than the recipe called for but a standard size processor handled the dough effortlessly. The crumb was as fine as breads made with two risings and the flavor, delicious.

Their extended butter recipe stretched 1 pound of sweet butter (89 cents for a store brand) to about 1 ¾ pounds by adding 1 cup of corn oil, 5 ounces of water and about 21 cents worth of liquid lecithin from a pint bottle that cost $2.49. The remaining lecithin stores indefinitely at room temperature and has many other uses in the Germans' book, including some delicious salad dressings that save calories as well as cents.

Their evaporated milk yogurt sets in only three hours and loses the characteristic canned milk flavor when the yogurt is chilled.

The Witty-Colchie dark chocolate sauce is delectable, plain or with their suggested additions: orange-flavored liqueur, peppermint extract or coffee. So are their home-brined pork, spiced coffees and teas and vodka-based liqueurs. The latter are not only a lot cheaper than commercial beverages, but you can vary their sweetness to taste and, in some cases, use the flavoring agents (citrus peels) afterwards in baking recipes, sauces or other beverages.

Worse than being lonely is being lonely and broke

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with Lenny for 25 years. When we fell in love we couldn't marry because he had an invalid father to care for and I had a sick mother.

He's in the entertainment business, knows interesting people, and we've had some great times together. (I pay my own way because I'm in better shape financially than he is.)

His father died recently, and so did my mother. I inherited a nice sum of money which I invested on the advice of my attorney and accountant. I have a nice income and a job that pays well.

Lenny says he wants to marry me and take charge of my investments. I'm not in favor of that because he hasn't been very successful with his own investments, and I think I'm better at handling money than he is.

He says if I don't accede to his wishes, it will be "goodbye." I'm in my early 50's. I love him, but I don't want to lose my financial security, which I fear will happen if I turn my money over. Help me.

NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW: If Lenny refuses to marry you unless he can handle your money, say goodbye. There are worse things than being lonely. Like being lonely and broke!

DEAR ABBY: When would you say a person has reached middle age?

— FORTY AND CURIOUS

DEAR FORTY: When he (or she) climbs out of the bathtub and is glad to find the full-length mirror all steamed up!

DEAR ABBY: A girlfriend and I have a difference of opinion concerning tipping. (I'll call her Jean.)

Jean received her order and I was told that mine was coming "momentarily." I told Jean to go ahead and start eating while hers was hot, so she did. In the meantime, only part of my order came.

I watched Jean eat, and just when she was finishing, the rest of my order came. It was cold. Evidently the waitress had forgotten to pick it up when it was hot.

Needless to say, I left no tip. I did not compalin about her poor service. Jean left a tip, contending that the service she received was just fine.

I explained that she was out of line for two reasons: First, she was my guest and I was paying the bill. Also, the service was not good, as both meals were not served at the same time.

Jean acknowledges that I am the best tipper she's ever known, so I am not cheap. What is your opinion?

S. C.

DEAR S. C.: You're right. Jean was wrong. But I think you should have complained to the management.

Feet-first approach for chicken broth

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE

NEW YORK — Not long ago, a reader wrote to say that her mother — from "the other side" — always made chicken soup with chicken feet. We agreed that the feet, because of their gelatinous nature, do contribute a great deal to soup. She wondered, however, how to go about ridding the feet of their yellow outer coating because the color imparts itself to the broth.

I discussed the matter with my local poultryman, who said he puts the chicken feet into water (150 degrees) for a couple of minutes, drains and skins.

This brought forth a number of replies and rebukes, including a note from Bettina Kornbluh of Hollis, Queens.

"It amused me," she said, "to learn that chicken feet are coming into vogue once more. I always considered them an indispensable ingredient of chicken soup before they became unavailable."

"My mother used a quick, easy way to clean them," she wrote. "Simply singe them over an open gas flame until the skin 'bubbles' and chars slightly. It takes only a minute, and the skin peels off without trouble."

And this from Ruth Teller of Hampton Bays, N.Y.:

"You will probably receive letters from a million Jewish mothers about your silly way to struggle to skin chicken feet. With patience and fingernails, indeed! Just plunge them into boiling water for a couple of seconds and peel the hot skin off with a paring knife. It comes off like a glove. Chilling would cause the skin to stick on."

We printed a simple formula for homemade grated horseradish — grate by hand, using the finest surface of a standard grater; add vinegar and salt to taste, and store, tightly sealed, in the refrigerator. But Helen Rogalski of Locust Valley, N.Y., stated there was a simpler method. She uses a food processor or blender and advises:

Combine one cup of scraped, fresh horseradish root, cut into half-inch cubes, with three-quarters of a cup of vinegar, one or two tablespoons of sugar and one-quarter of a teaspoon of salt. Blend until the horseradish is finely grated. Store, tightly sealed, in the refrigerator.

. . . bureaucracy blasted

WINNIPEG (UPC) — Senior bureaucrats control Canada's politicians and cause government overspending by padding their programs instead of paring them, Auditor-General James MacDonnell said Wednesday.

MacDonnell, in a rare public speech, said the bureaucracy still praises and promotes public servants for getting as much money for their departments as possible.

"The country is economically sick ... and elected representatives are no longer effectively in control of the public purse," he told the Institute of Public Administration of Canada.

"The bureaucracies have no incentive to restore that control."

MacDonnell, who retires later this year, said public servants should be receiving praise for being "money-wise" and getting "value for money."

"Senior federal public servants have had an unclear mandate and inadequate training to fairly be held fully accountable for the efficient, economical and effective management of public funds and resources."

However, he said the Conservative government seems to be on the right track to restraint, and praised the previous Liberal administration's creation of a Comptroller-General and the 1978 appointment of Harry Rogers as the first holder of that post.

MacDonnell said the Lambert Commission on financial management in the federal government and annual reports from the Auditor General had provided "ample evidence that our own country is sick ... and the superbureaucrats may well be the carriers," he said.

Bureaucrats should receive financial training now and the government accounts committee should also be given wide responsibilities to do a detailed review of the total federal budget, he said.

At present, no committee has a financial overview and MPs spend "precious little time reviewing the budget."

"Today, they (taxpayers) are demanding value for money from the $90 billion plus of federal and provincial spending. In California, this demand took the form of radical surgery. We in Canada must come up with something more realistic than Proposition 13 if we are to avoid that kind of taxpayer rebellion."

Also Wednesday, Prime Minister Joe Clark made a move towards restraint, by appointing Perrin Beatty, Minister of State for the Treasury Board, to develop a timetable for implementing the Lambert Commission's recommendations.

Airlines dumping Mirabel over costs

MONTREAL (CP) — At least six foreign air lines plan to cut back service to Mirabel International Airport this fall because of soaring operating costs, according to The Gazette.

The Montreal morning daily says British Airways, Air France, Iberia, TAP, Alitalia and Lufthansa will reduce the number of flights into the airport because the company that services their aircraft, General Aviation Services Ltd., plans to increase its rates by as much as 75 per cent.

British Airways introduced the heaviest service cuts at Mirabel, eliminating all but its four weekly flights to London this fall and winter this year, The Gazette says.

Last year it ran four weekly flights to Manchester and Prestwick.

The newspaper also quotes airline executives as saying passenger traffic at the airport has not come up to expectations.

"In the entire world, only Peking has higher charges than Mirabel," says Hans Dedekam, the senior Canadian executive with Scandanavian Airways Systems.

However, federal transport department official Andre Dumas said he has had no indication that the companies are planning the cutbacks or have any complaints that the airport is too expensive.

Dumas also said there is no question of mothballing the airport, despite suggestions from some Conservative politicians that Mirabel should be closed for the next 10 years.

The Gazette also said Mirabel is facing one its worst years, having posted a financial loss of $50 million in 1978, a deficit expected to go higher this year.

Under an accounting system insituted by the former Liberal government, the airport showed a small gain, the newspaper says, because construction and land acquisition costs were not included.

Chicken farmers raising squawk

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Angry farmers tried to block trucks loaded with about 28,000 live chickens from crossing the border into Canada on Wednesday shouting: "Take them back, throw them in the river."

About 40 farmers set up a picket line outside the Peace Bridge customs yard but after a 30-minute inspection the trucks left by a back exit, accompanied by an provincial police car.

Jim Karras, farmer from St. Anns, Ont., and director on the Ontario Chicken Producers Marketing Board, said truck drivers could be hurt unless Maple Lodge Farms Ltd., the leading importer, stops bringing in U.S. chicken.

He said the practice depresses prices and reduces markets.

Karras said there are half a million chickens backed up across Ontario because U.S. chicken is dominating the market.

Farmers will be driven out of business in a few months unless the federal government stops all imports from the U.S., he said.

Sympathy lacking

MONTREAL (CP) — A man whose car was stolen from a Montreal parking lot in 1977 and later found with $1,500 in damages got no solace from Provincial Court, which ruled Wednesday he deliberately left the car unlocked and unattended.

Judge Pierre Durand said the owner, Jean Vincent, was negligent and, moreover, did not deny seeing a clause on his parking stub disclaiming any responsibility for the vehicle after closing time. The suit against Globe Parking Canada Ltd. was dismissed.

Union to pay $2.5 million compensation

MONTREAL (CP) — The Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) announced Wednesday it will pay Reynolds Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd. $2.5 million in an out-of-court settlement for damages incurred in a two-day illegal strike in 1967.

The CNTU had been ordered in February to pay Reynolds Aluminum $10 million for damages when supervisors were halted from preventing the hardening of aluminum in pot lines.

The 200,000-member trade-union group said the payment, worked out with company negotiators, will be spread over three years.

The union said it did not consider the settlement was an admission of responsibility, but merely the best for its members.

The case stems from a two-day walkout in 1967 at the Baie Comeau smelter of Canadian British Metals, now owned by Reynolds Aluminum. The union's contract still had 18 months to run.

The company, which began legal proceedings in 1968, claimed the strikers prevented company officials from entering the smelter to shut down the plant in an orderly way and molten aluminum solidified in pot lines.

The company also claimed $4.5 million in lost production while the smelter operation ran at under-capacity levels for several weeks while repairs were going on.

CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT

Pursuant to Section 766AA of the Municipal Act, the following text of By-law No. 620, cited as "Building Regulation Amendment By-law No. 7, 1979" is hereby published as at third reading and prior to submission to the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

A BY-LAW TO AMEND BUILDING REGULATION BY-LAW No. 168, 1974

1. By-law No. 168 is amended as follows:

"9 FACTORY BUILT HOUSES, MOBILE HOMES AND BUILDING MOVES

(1) Except as provided in paragraph 9(2) hereof the fee for a permit to move and establish a factory built house which has been certified by Canadian Standards Association as complying with C.S.A. Standard No. A277 or a mobile home which has been certified by Canadian Standards Association as complying with C.S.A. Standard No. Z240 shall be $100.00 plus a building permit fee clculated in accordance with paragraph 1 hereof based on the value of the completed works required to establish the building on site.

(2) The fee for a permit to move and establish a factory built house or a mobile home, certified as aforesaid, into an approved mobile home park shall be $100.00.

(3) The fee for a permit to move and establish a building, other than those described in paragraphs 9(1), 9(2) or 9(4) hereof shall be calculated in accordance with paragraph 1 hereof, based on the value of the completed building in its rehabilitated condition at the new location. The value of the completed building shall be the market value determined by the Chief Building Inspector of the Capital Regional District.

(4) The fee for a permit to establish or relocate any temporary building within the Capital Regional District shall be calculated in accordance with paragraph 1 hereof, based on 50% of the value of the completed building determined by the Chief Building Inspector of the Capital Regional District.

(5) Notwithstanding anything elsewhere contained herein, the fee for a permit to relocate an existing buiding, mobile home, factory built house or temporary building from one location to another location on the same parcel of land shall be calculated in accordance with paragraph 1 hereof, based on the cost to move and rehabilitate the structure determined by the Chief Building Inspector of the Capital Regional District."

A copy of the complete by-law may be viewed during normal working hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, holidays excepted, at the offices of the Capital Regional District, 524 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C.

Import surge cuts surplus

OTTAWA (CP) — A surge of import-buying in July led to the smallest monthly trade surplus so far this year.

Preliminary trade figures released today by Statistics Canada showed the surplus of exports over imports last month dropped to $77 million from a June total of $206 million.

The federal agency said imports increased by 10.2 per cent last month to $5.1 billion. At the same time, exports increased by a more modest 7.1 per cent to $5.17 billion.

During the first half of 1979, the country's trade surplus was $970 million, compared with $1.9 billion for the corresponding six-month period in 1978.

Finance Minister John Crosbie predicted a $2.1 billion trade surplus in his state-of-the-economy address a month ago. Last year, the country chalked up a record $3.5-billion margin of exports of over imports.

Most economists have warned, however, that Canada cannot expect to maintain its level of sales to the U.S., its biggest trading partner, with that country heading into what appears to be a protracted economic downturn.

Today's trade figures are likely to put further pressure on the dollar, which closed Wednesday on world money markets Wednesday at 85.38 cents U.S.

Since the beginning of the week it has fallen against its U.S. counterpart from a value of 85.7 cents.

Money market traders, both within the government and in the private sector, have complained that Statistics Canada aggravates the country's currency problems by rushing to release preliminary trade figures — such as those published today — which sometimes turn out to be inaccurate.

In the figures released today, the agency revises its June trade surplus slightly to $206 million from it preliminary figure of $190 million.

But Statistics Canada still asks that preliminary figures be treated cautiously.

Although the July trade surplus was the smallest recorded in any month this year, it was not markedly worse that some of the monthly figures chalked up in the spring. In April the trade surplus was just $82 million and the March figure was $90 million.

There was, however, a slight improvement inCanada's six-month deficit in international travel this year, compared with 1978.

NAMEGAME No. 5

WIN! $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES EVERY OTHER WEEK!

WIN! GRAND PRIZE TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII, By Wardair

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

LETTERS FOR TODAY, GAME No. 5 ONLY
FINAL GAME IN THIS SERIES

N F L

IMPORTANT!

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

Clark firm over PetroCan

Times News Services

JASPER — The federal government's inner cabinet meets for a final session at their mountain retreat today, after settling on an energy policy that includes a pledge by Prime Minister Clark to turn Petro-Canada over to private enterprise.

"I certainly will be living up to my campaign undertaking and the minister of energy will deal with the question ... next week," Clark said Wednesday. The prime minister would give no details of the plan.

Clark said his government had also decided its policy on higher domestic oil prices. He expected the final agreement to be a compromise, reached without a confrontation with the provinces.

He said he would move "as quickly as possible" to discussions with individual provinces and the oil industry.

"I'm quite encouraged by what I read to be a generally positive attitude on the part of all the provinces," Clark told reporters at the Jasper Lodge resort.

Ontario, the nation's largest oil consumer, has been campaigning for revenue sharing from future oil price increases while Alberta, the main producer, wants to retain its control over resources.

The federal government is committed to moving the Canadian price towards world levels more quickly than the former Liberal government. The current Canadian price is $13.75 a barrel while world prices range from $20 to $25 a barrel.

Saskatchewan residents have paid dearly to help shelter other Canadians from rising oil prices, he said.

By accepting less than world prices for Saskatchewan oil consumed elsewhere in Canada, he said, the province will lose about $280 million this year, "roughly $300 for every person in Saskatchewan."

"That represents a bonus from the people of Moose Jaw to the people of London (Ont.) and it is not immediately obvious, if you have visited London and if you have visited Moose Jaw, that the money should be flowing in that direction."

Speaking to a Financial Post conference on Saskatchewan resource development, the premier vowed to protect Saskatchewan's right to its fast-growing revenues and to use the greater economic power "for a more equitable distribution of the benefits of federation."

"With the economic centre of gravity of Canada shifting westward, we will no longer have to attend federal-provincial discussions in the role of a mendicant-supplicant.

"Our stick, though it will still be small, will be somewhat larger than it has been in the past, so we expect Saskatchewan's voice to be heard more clearly."

309 IN MEMORIAM

ANDERSON — In loving memory of an uncle, Frederick Anderson, who passed away August 30th, 1978.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away,
Good took him home-it was his will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.
Sadly missed and always remembered by nephew Brian.

ANDERSON — In loving memory of a brother-in-law, Frederick Anderson, who passed away August 30th, 1978.
Not dead to us who loved him,
Not lost, but gone bedore,
He lives with us in memory,
And will forever more.
Always remembered by sisters-in-law, Mabel and Arlene and brother-in-law, Hubert.

In loving memory of Dorcas Johnson, who passed away August 30, 1978. Very much loved and missed by her loving husband, Bob and Family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies.
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

When is lily not a lily?

The term "lily" is applied to many of our garden plants that are not true lilies or even related to true lilies, but somewhere in the past the flowers have been thought to resemble lilies and the names have persisted.

Not that it matters very much until show time comes around. Then we find judges are very particular about the flowers or plants that are entered in the classes for lilies.

Many exhibitors have lost a first prize, and even the Best-in-the-Show award through entering a plant or flower with the word lily in its common name in a class for true lilies.

In its correct class, or in a class for any other plant (or flower), it would have swept the board, but all the judge can do when it is in the wrong class is to disqualify the entry.

For this reason, many show committees have reworded the lily class to read "any species of the genus Lilium."

This definitely excludes some 45 plants with lily as part of their common name, and many of these will be found in local gardens.

Some belong in the lily family, Liliacae, but not in the genus Lilium, while others represent the Amaryllis, Calla, Crowfoot, Ginger, Iris, and Water-lily families.

The home gardeners are still left on their own to decide which are the true lilies, and this is where a garden encyclopedia comes in handy.

The true lilies are listed under Lilium, and Prof. Bailey in Hortus Second gives some 83 species plus hybrids and varieties. The novice at exhibiting would do well to consult a copy at the library before making show entries.

There is one other way in which the true lilies can be identified. The plant grows from a scaly bulb and has leaves the entire length of the flower stem.

It will be found that most of the so-called lilies do not satisfy both of these conditions, but there are a few exceptions.

The Crown Imperial, for example, has a bulb and leaves on the flower stems, and while it belongs in the lily family its genus is Fritillaria.

It comes as a surprise to home gardeners when the beautiful "fall crocus" so many writers rave about at this time of year are not a fall crocus since they do not belong to the crocus family. They are Colchicums (colkee-cums) and belong in the lily family.

Generally speaking, a bulb without scales and a flower without leaves means a plant that is not a true lily, regardless of its common name.

Tax break plea rebuffed

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe refused Wednesday to consider a special tax break for property owners in the Greater Vancouver Regional District.

District chairman Alan Emmott complained that Vancouver-area homeowners are carrying an unfair tax burden because of their high property values compared with the rest of the province.

He said if the inequities could be corrected, the GVRD municipalities would find it easier to pick up their share of transit deficits.

However, Wolfe said cutting taxes in areas with high property values would simply mean discrimination against areas with low property values.

Slap rap zapped by judge

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provincial court judge lashed out Tuesday at what he called the pettiness of hospital officials for laying assault charges against a psychiatric ward patient who slapped two nurses in January.

"These are criminal courts not kindergartens," Judge G. R. Coultas said while dismissing two counts of common assault against Margaret Louise Bahen, 35, of Burnaby.

Bahen was charged by St. Paul's hospital officials after an incident Jan. 30 in the hospital's crisis ward where she slapped one nurse in the face — which she admitted to — and hit another nurse in the nose — which she said was an accident.

Eileen Cook, one of the registered nurses struck, said Bahen was in the ward for three days and was on the drug haldol which she called "a major tranquillizer."

In dismissing the charges, Judge Coultas said it was an "extraordinary case. It should never have been laid."

He said Bahen was under the influence of a tranquiller and that "this is a crisis unit... not your average psychiatric ward."

Newspaper for blind

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, (Reuter) — A newspaper has successfully tested a new home computer link which makes the news available in a braille edition for blind people. Designer and journalist Leif Andersson says the Goeteborgs Posten is the first newspaper in the world to operate the system. It involves a telephone link from the newspaper to a small computer terminal which activates a braille printer.

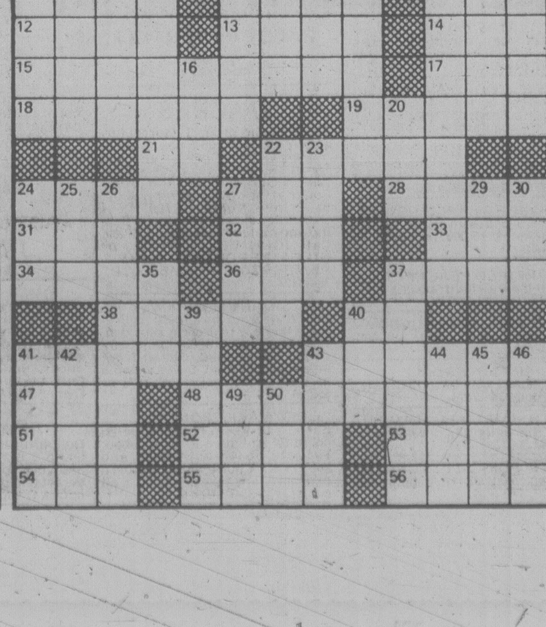
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



Anglicans' Gartrell will retire December 1

Bishop Roy Gartrell of the Anglican Diocese of B.C. is resigning Dec. 1.

Bishop Gartrell says he is resigning to allow a new bishop to go the Canadian General Synod in June 1980. The synod, the main decision making body of the church, is held only once every three years.

"I've had nearly ten years as bishop and retirement is bound to be just around the corner. I thought it would be appropriate if the new bishop led the delegation to the synod and was completely in accord with the decisions that were made. It was entirely out of concern for the diocese."

Bishop Gartrell, who is 65, says he plans to stay in Victoria and pursue his hobbies.

"I was once almost a concert pianist and I'm determined to got some of that back."

He says he was born on a farm and he has "dirt under the fingernails". He's hoping to do a lot of gardening.

Aside from that, he hopes to remain active in the church and do volunteer work for the John Howard Society, which he helped to set up in Winnipeg.

The Catholic Bishop of Victoria, Remi De Roo says that Bishop Gartrell and his wife Grace were personal friends and he wishes them well in their retirement.

"I have been constantly impressed by his dedication to his office and his personal integrity," says De Roo.

Bishop Gartrell was consecrated bishop of the diocese in May 1970. He has been responsible for up to 38,000 Anglicans on Vancouver Island, the Queen Charlottes, and the Gulf Islands.

During his term, he has encouraged a move towards ecumenical churches, particularly on the north end of the island. The Anglican, Catholic and United Churches have joined together in many small communities to provide one church and one minister.

Bishop Gartrell says he has seen a great deal more lay participation in the life of the church in his time.

"The church population has remained fairly static here, but the committment of people has obviously increased. Givings have sky-rocketed and there is a greater committment to the lay ministry," says Gartrell.

He says he has not ordained women in this diocese because he doesn't think the church on the island is ready for it. But he is personally in favor of the ordination of women.

Another great shift he has seen has been the growth of the world Anglican church, particularly in Africa where church membership has gone up ten per cent a year. Gartrell says he expects to see a black as Archbishop of Canterbury within his lifetime.

Bishop Gartrell was born in Stoney Creek, Ontario. He was ordained in 1938 and spent eight years as Dean of the Cathedral in Ottawa before coming to Victoria.

Bishop Gerald Burch will act as interim administrator of the diocese until the election of a new bishop in January or February.

Alaska Gov. backs B.C.

Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond says he sides with Canada in the dispute over U.S. fishermen intruding into Canadian waters in pursuit of tuna.

"I'm with you 100 per cent," Hammond said Wednesday after his annual meeting with Premier Bill Bennett and Yukon Commissioner Ione Christensen.

Eight U.S. fishboats were seized Sunday and their captains charged Tuesday with with entering and fishing in Canadian waters. The vessels were released after their masters posted $5,000 bond each. They are to appear in court again in February.

American fishing boat skippers, facing possible illegal fishing charges and seizures of their tuna catches, continued to ply Canadian waters Wednesday despite requests by their owners' associations that they leave, a Canadian official says.

Wally Johnson, federal fisheries director for the Pacific region, said more charges could be laid.

Johnson said it is difficult to determine how many American boats are still fishing inside the Canadian 200-mile territorial limit because of the likelihood that some boats are being reported several times.

The request by the owners' associations — one based in Seattle and one in California — that U.S. boats abandon Canadian waters came after eight U.S. captains, charged with violating the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act, left Victoria and sailed south for American waters.

"We want to promote U.S.-Canadian fishery relations, not damage them," said Bob Alverson, manager of the Fishing Vessel Owners Association in Seattle. "We feel our action is the most expedient way to solve any problem that exists between the two countries."

Meanwhile negotiations were continuing in an effort to reach an agreement on migratory fish such as tuna. Canada claims jurisdiction over fish within the 200-mile limit while the U.S. recognizes only a 12-mile limit for highly migratory fish.

B.C. fishermen, still angry over U.S. over-fishing of shared halibut runs, say Canada has not been taking a tough enough stance on the illegal fishing.

"One of our members caught over the (U.S.) boundary line near Bellingham (Wash.) had his boat seized and he was taken to jail," said George Hewison, secretary-treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union. "He didn't even have any fish."

He said local fishermen want illegal catches impounded and the fish boat captains jailed.

Beach battle goes to court

Lawyers for a Mayne Island man who has built a dock across a popular bathing beach say they will fight an application for a temporary injunction that would halt further construction and commercial uses of the dock.

A writ seeking the temporary injunction was filed earlier this week by the Islands Trust in B.C. Supreme Court in Victoria and a hearing is set for Friday.

Vancouver lawyer Doug Robson said Weldon Pinchin, owner of a hotel on the island, has already completed construction of the dock which he began building in front of his hotel in 1977.

The Trust has applied for a permanent injunction to stop further construction. It also seeks an order to demolish the existing structure.

Skate takeover gets backing

A faltering Saanich skatebowl business should be rescued by the municipality, Ald. Geoff Vantreight said Wednesday.

Vantreight, chairman of the recreation committee, will recommend the committee ask council to take over Saanich Skatewave.

Council could operate the skatebowl six months of the year, Vantreight said.

He doesn't expect the operation will make money, but said it's the best that can be done under the circumstances.

He said the operation is used regularly by about 100 youthful skateboarders, but overhead makes it too expensive to run.

But Mayor Mel Couvelier said Wednesday he doesn't want Saanich running the skatebowl.

Council made a mistake last July when it leased the space to the two young businessmen who run the operation, he said.

Matheson Lake . . . Metchosin's precious jewel

Walk of the Week

Magic quality found at Matheson Lake

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A visitor from Ontario recently was taken to Matheson Provincial Park in Metchosin early in the morning.

His host thought it would be just the right touch to round out his visit to the West Coast.

It worked.

It is this quality that makes the park so popular in the spring, fall and winter.

In summer, the lake rings to the voices of bathers splashing in the clear water or sunning themselves along the shore and on an idyllic small island.

But come the summer evening, it reverts to its still beauty — the magic restored.

On the south side of the lake is 700-foot Mount Matheson, on the north the Canadian National Railway right-of-way which many people hope will become a bikeway. If it does, it will certainly become one of the most popular areas for cyclists.

The 401-acre park, established in 1956, offers walkers a trail which circles the lake. It passes through some fine timber, skirts a bay and crosses a few small creeks.

You can extend your walk by going to attractive Roche Cove which forms part of Sooke Basin.

To get there take a trail on the right side of the lake's outlet, follow the creek which eventually takes you to a logging road. Five minutes walk takes you to a ribbon trail going back to the creek and to the cove. In all it's about a half-hour walk.

The park has some interesting plants, including Little Princess Pine and Pipsissewa, delicate woodland flowers. Few people notice them growing in dry areas under fir trees. Trout and bass are also found in the lake.

The park is 45 minutes from downtown Victoria, a short distance from Pedder Bay Road.

Travel via Metchosin Road, west on Happpy Valley Road and then south on Rocky Point Road.

Spruce-up plan launched

A program to spruce up the exteriors of heritage structures is open for applications, Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said Wednesday.

The Heritage Area Revitilization scheme is intended to encourage the restoration of exterior areas as opposed to the Heritage Trust program which is aimed at the preservation of buildings.

The new program will provide assistance to municipalities for the preservation of building facades, signs and what the trust calls "streetscapes."

Municipalities receiving heritage area grants will be able to spread the work over several years. The Heritage Trust will determine if assistance for successful applicants will be in the form of technical help or funding.

"This should provide communities with the incentive to salvage suitable areas for preservation and help to keep our rapidly accelerating present and future visually in touch with our colorful past," said Curtis.

Before the judge

Consuming alcohol and aging have a lot in common, Judge William Ostler told an 18-year-old in provincial court Wednesday.

Timothy Barron, 135 Gorge Road East, vented his feelings about the legal drinking age in B.C. after pleading guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor.

Barron was stopped in a vehicle on Princess shortly before midnight June 8 and admitted ownership of some wine and rum.

When the judge asked him if he had anything to say, Barron began by noting that persons 16 years of age were given the biggest responsibility of all, the right to drive a vehicle.

Not only that, Barron continued, at 18 he was allowed to vote federally.

Why then, he asked rhetorically, couldn't persons under 19 possess alcohol?

Ostler explained that the legislators of the country, in their wisdom, decided that at 16, persons were able to accept the responsibility of driving and, at 18, were mature enough to exercise the right to vote. He said the same legislators decided that those 19 years of age or more would be able to handle drinking.

With a slight trace of a smile, the judge added: "I don't know why you're so all-fired in a hurry to start drinking liquor at your age. When you get old, like some of us, you may need a drink now and then to keep going."

* * *

A 58-year-old man who told Victoria police he wanted 30 or 60 days in jail to "dry out" got his wish.

John Campbell Inglis, 711 Johnson, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk Tuesday afternoon on Douglas.

Court was informed Inglis was sitting on the front steps of the Bank of Commerce shortly before 4 p.m., bothering passers-by.

In court, Inglis told the judge he wanted treatment for his alcoholism but the three-day program at the detoxification centre was not enough.

Inglis said he had been able to abstain from alcohol for two years in Eastern Canada but wasn't able to do so here, blaming it on the "air or something."

Ostler said the air here should be intoxicating enough by itself before he imposed a 30-day sentence.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Lonnie Leon MacLean, 24, of 2930 Qu'Appelle, $500; Barrie Lloyd Kirkland, 32, of 326 Zealous, $500; Donna Susan Lowry, 24, of 2974 Pickford, $400; David Newell, 33, of 314 Zealous, $400; and John Reid, 60, of 2511 Dowler, $350.

In addition, Lowry was fined $150 for leaving the scene of an accident.

British Columbia beer drinkers will have to pay more to wet their whistles during the holiday weekend.

Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen announced today that the retail price of bottled and canned beer will increase Saturday by 35 cents a dozen.

The price hike means a dozen bottles of beer will cost $4.60, plus a deposit of 60 cents.

The minister also said beer parlors will be permitted to increase the price of draught beer by a maximum of five cents a glass.

In hotels, pubs and cabarets, regular bottled beer will cost up to 15 cents more.

A quarter-litre of draught beer in B.C. now costs from 40 to 50 cents, the latter price being the norm in Greater Victoria.

The retail price hikes go hand-in-hand with increases in the wholesale price of beer that take effect Saturday. The government will pay $2.86½ a dozen, up from $2.64½ which was set in February, 1978.

Nielsen said the increases reflect general price increase granted to the three member companies of Pacific Brewers Distribution Ltd. — Labatts, Molsons and Carling-O'Keefe — to offset continuing cost escalation in labor, materials and distribution.

However, Prince George Breweries has indicated it will retain current prices on packaged and draught beer.

Doug Grant, vice-president of Labatt's said in an interview he was pleased with the price rise — which is basically what the brewers had requested last February — but wished it had come sooner to take advantage of the busy summer period.

More than five million cases of beer were sold in B.C. during July, the most ever in a single month.

Liquor Control board spokesman Ken Stewart said the new price schedule gives the maximum amount beer parlor operators may charge. Operators can set any minimum price they want, he said, but once they do so, the price must be fixed.

Hurricane devastates

Dominica flattened by storm

BRIDGETOWN (AP) — Hurricane David devastated the tiny Caribbean island of Dominica when it swept through Wednesday, levelling virtually all the houses in Roseau, the island's capital, and killing at least four persons, Radio Barbados reported today.

Dominican Prime Minister Oliver Seraphin predicted the death toll would go "much higher," the radio said.

Government buildings, schools and churches on Dominica were opened to an estimated 60,000 refugees whose flimsy, wooden homes were flattened by hurricane winds, the radio reported.

Hurricane David, one of the most dangerous of the 20th century, roared south of the U.S. Virgin Islands today and battered the southern coast of Puerto Rico after cutting its path of destruction across Dominica and two other islands in the Antilles, Martinique and Guadeloupe.

Heavy seas and gale-force winds battered Puerto Rico's southern shore, flooding low-lying areas and forcing the evacuation of some seashore residents from Ponce, the island's second-largest city.

"When they pass the Dominican Republic, that's the point where they usually turn north toward Cuba or the United States," a member of the U.S. Weather Service said. "Some go straight west toward Mexico and some just die out, but this one doesn't look like it's going to die out."

French officials said 12 persons were injured on Guadeloupe and 15 on Martinique when the storm struck Wednesday, and said there was considerable damage on the two French Caribbean islands.

GNP slumps 2.8%

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's level of production fell during the second quarter of the year for the first time since mid-1976, government figures released today show.

In annual terms, the output of goods and services shrank by 2.8 per cent for the three-month period ending June 30, compared with the previous quarter.

This indication of declining economic activity followed a surprisingly good first quarter, during which the economy grew at an annual rate of 6.8 per cent.

However, government officials warned that the first quarter growth rate was deceptively high and could not be maintained for the remainder of the year.

Statistics Canada said the value of all goods and services produced during the second quarter was $253.78 billion. The total for the previous quarter was $248.03 billion. Although the second quarter dollar figure was 2.3 per cent higher, the value of the output shrank by the time inflation was taken into account.

The federal agency said most of the decline resulted from a drop in export sales.

Consumers spent less than in the first quarter, business investment in machinery and equipment dropped and companies sold off some of the inventory of goods building up in their stockrooms and warehouses.

Gold up again

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices soared to record highs today in hectic trading reaching $319.15 an ounce in London, the highest price ever for the precious metal.

FLYING START: Winger Willie Johnston heads home a delicate pass from midfielder Alan Ball in the second half to score the first goal in Vancouver Whitecaps' 2-0 victory over New York Cosmos in Wednesday night's North American Soccer League semi-final playoff before 32,824 at Empire Stadium. Second game of the series is Saturday in New York and if Cosmos win that one, teams will play a one-half hour game immediately following to decide who advances to the final against San Diego Sockers or Tampa Bay Rowdies. Vancouver's second goal by Trevor Whymark in the 85th minute prompted a violent outburst by Cosmo coach Julio Mazzei against the officials. Mazzei argued that the score came on an offside play. See story on page 12.

Times News Services

Two terrorist members of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army — one regarded as a time bomb expert — were charged today with the murder of Earl Louis Mountbatten of Burma. They showed no emotion but waved to friends and relatives as they were led away to jail cells to be held for a special court hearing Oct. 2.

The pair were identified as Francis McGirl, 24, and Thomas McMahon, 31. Police said they were both residents of the Eire-Ulster border area.

McMahon, a married man with one child, is an upholsterer, but security sources regard him as an acknowledged expert on time bombs. McGirl is an unmarried farmer.

Neither reacted as the charge was read that "on Aug. 27, in Donegal Bay in Mullaghmore, County Sligo, they murdered Lord Louis Mountbatten contrary to public law."

The two were flanked by policemen, and the suspects' lawyers were present but said nothing during the 4½-minute proceeding.

McGirl and McMahon were picked up Monday morning driving toward Dublin from the west of Ireland shortly before a powerful bomb ripped apart Mountbatten's fishing boat in Donegal Bay, on the northwest coast. Police sources said the two men had traces of nitroglycerine and sea water in their clothing.

A Royal Air Force jet was scheduled to fly the bodies of Mountbatten, 79, his 14-year-old grandson, Nicholas, and the Dowager Lady Brabourne home to England late Thursday.

Meanwhile, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, donning a camouflage flak jacket and a military beret, helicoptered into the heart of Northern Ireland's "bandit country" Wednesday in a show of defiance to the Irish Republican Army which considers the border region its own.

Despite the renewed security clampdown, Mrs. Thatcher spent 15 minutes walking through Belfast's crowded main shopping center, mobbed and applauded by startled shoppers.

Then putting on a military flak jacket and a beret of the Ulster Defence Regiment militia — but still clutching her handbag — Mrs. Thatcher boarded a military helicopter and flew to Crossmaglen, capital of the south Armagh region the IRA largely controls near the Irish republic border.

New tuna arrests

The latest seizures brought to 10 the number of American boats seized for suspected violations of Canada's 200-mile fishing limit.

The two boats — the Proud Mary from San Diego, Calif. and the Santa Innes from Aberdeen, Wash. — are expected to arrive here about midnight tonight.

Oil port pollutes - study

SEATTLE (AP) — If an oil port is built at Port Angeles, or at Low Point, 65 kilometres west of Port Angeles, a spill of more than 10,000 barrels can be expected every 203 to 335 years, depending on the location, a federal study says.

An environmental study by the Bureau of Land Management also said any of three proposed oil ports in Washington and Alaska would degrade air quality.

The new federal document predicted emissions from the proposed Northern Tier Pipeline Co. terminal at Port Angeles would violate federal clean air standards for sulphur dioxide in Olympic National Park about 10 days a year.

The study also noted that the probability of a tanker fire or explosion in port was highest for the Northern Tier's proposed oil port at Port Angeles.

Oil spills, fires and explosions were listed as the "most significant impacts" associated with operating a major oil port along the Pacific Northwest coast, the study indicated.

The document, released this week, doesn't make any judgments about which of three projects proposed in Washington and Alaska would be the safest.

Tables in the study indicate each of the projects has its advantages and disadvantages.

The document said the probability of a major oil spill — more than 10,000 barrels — from a tanker at berth was highest for the Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Corp.'s proposed oil port at Low Point and the lowest for Foothills Oil Pipe Line's proposed port at Skagway, Alaska.

An oil spill greater than 10,000 barrels from a tanker at berth can be expected every 203 years at Low Point, every 335 years at Port Angeles and every 480 years at Skagway, it said.

The study said tankers in transit would be most likely to spill more than 10,000 barrels on their way to Skagway and least likely to cause a major spill on their way to Low Point.

Northern Tier, Trans Mountain and Foothills are three of four projects competing for federal approval to carry Alaskan and foreign crude oil from Northwest ports by pipeline to Midwest refineries.

The fourth proposal calls for an oil port at Kitimat.

$13M satellite program for search and rescue

The federal government has approved a $13 million four-year program to take part in development and evaluation of an experimental search and rescue satellite (SARSAT) system, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said today.

A fully operational SARSAT system would reduce notification time of a mishap to a maximum of three hours and narrow a search to within 20 kilometres. The system will help save lives and reduce loss of property, especially during marine incidents where salvage is often possible in the early stages of an emergency, McKinnon said.

Canada, the U.S. and France are now taking part in the initial stages of the experiment which involves equipping and launching three U.S. weather satellites with special repeaters and processors. The experimental SARSAT system will use existing emergency locator transmitters (ELTs) and emergency position-indicating radio beacons (EPIRBs) used in marine vessels.

The repeater-carrying satellites will monitor emergency transmissions from ELTs and EPIRBs while in orbit and relay the transmissions to a ground-based terminal which will determine the origin of the distress signal. This information will be relayed to the appropriate search and rescue co-ordination centres for action.

The Soviet Union is also co-operating in the SARSAT program and intends to develop its own system to be operate with the western one.

The 15-month demonstration and evaluation stage is scheduled to begin in 1982. If successful, the experiment is expected to lead to international acceptance and a world-wide SARSAT system.

Judge slams Bruins' rink brawl

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Judge James Shaw gave seven major junior hockey players a tongue-lashing Wednesday in provincial court for their shameful actions on the ice and also blamed management for inciting them to violence.

Shaw then granted conditional discharges to seven members of New Westminster Bruins who had pleaded guilty to assault charges after a one-sided brawl in a Western Hockey League game here March 22 against Portland Winter Hawks.

The judge also banned the seven from playing any league games at any level until Dec. 1 this year.

The sentence means that, if they obey the terms of their probation and commit no other offences before Dec. 1, they will not have criminal records.

Those charged were Boris Fistric and Richard Amann, both 18, Rob Roflick, 17, Bill Hobbins, Bruce Howes and John Paul Kelly, all 19, and Terry Kirham, 20.

Fistric and Kelly were both selected in the recent National Hockey League entry draft in the third round, Fistric by Detroit Red Wings and Kelly by Los Angeles Kings.

The judge called hockey management generally the "underlying authors of the brawl" which lasted 15 minutes with just four seconds left in the last regular-season meeting between the teams.

Shaw said he felt a prison sentence would be too harsh, but a fine would be likened to "a fee for this sort of reprehensible conduct."

"It must be brought home to all young men who play the aggressive brand of Canadian hockey that their aggression cannot go beyond the bounds of the rules of the sport and enter the area of the criminal law," said the judge.

"Each of these young men must shoulder the responsibility of their shameful actions. Yet the underlying authors of this brawl are not before the court.

"The entire system of hockey as it exists in North America today, from midget to NHL, the team owners, management and in particular the coaches, must bear a large share of the responsibility.

"These young men are manipulated — apparently happily — by the owners and coaches to do exactly what they are told.

'If the piece doesn't speak for itself, there is no use me talking about it'

By JANE COVERNTON
Times Staff

What is it?

"A refugee from Cape Canaveral," said one passer-by.

"Something to do with solar heating."

Hardly a person passing by the sculpture in the courtyard of the new $25 million provincial government building at 940 Broughton fails to look up — and comment — on the fanned-out wings of steel.

"I don't know. I just hope it doesn't make a noise."

"A tree, I say a tree."

Says its creator George Norris of Vancouver: "If the piece doesn't speak for itself, there's no use me talking about it."

Norris, who was born in Victoria, is spending his days at the Waddington Building — named after Alfred Waddington, a 19th century Victoria entrepreneur and writer — putting the finishing touches on the sculpture, which he refuses to name.

"It's similar to music or poetry. A name limits it to some kind of prosaic statement. Actually many people have caught on to some of the original ideas, even in the smart alec comments."

Sculptor Norris, left, on the job

Norris has been working on the sculpture for a couple of years, designing, modelling, casting, forming, and welding.

He was commissioned — for $60,000 — on the recomendation of the Provincial Art Committee, set up by the former NDP government.

Norris is reluctant to talk about money. He thinks money shouldn't be linked to art.

But building project manager Mack Lewis thinks the taxpayer got a bargain and Norris will be lucky if he makes $1.25 an hour for the time he's put in.

Norris has had lots of experience at this type of thing. He's been doing architectural sculpture for 20 years. One of his pieces, The Crab, graces the front of the MacMillan Planetarium in Vancouver.

When the Waddington Building sculpture — untitled — is finished, it will rotate slowly. It has a slip clutch, a reduction gear, and a magic electronic box.

Passers-by will be able to switch it on. It will spin for a while, and then gradually come to a stop.

"I wanted it to be extremely slow, almost floating, so as not to be an irritant," said Norris. "It will turn in an almost random way, just when people walk by. I hope that keeps it from being too mechanical."

There is one slight problem.

When the thing rotates, the curving steel blades catch the light of the sun and throw it into the eyes of captive office workers in the third and fourth floors.

They've had to put long strips of paper across the tops of the windows facing the sculpture. The brown paper looks odd on the elegant new building.

He doesn't take their problems too seriously.

The eye-blinking caused by the sculpture is just one of a number of problems that have bedevilled the workers in the new building since they moved in about a year ago.

'Hindsight is wonderful' — manager

"Stairway Closed Due to Carpet Problems" the signs say.

The stairways are ultra-modern glass structures on the outside of the building. The sun beats into the stairwells and heats up the adhesive holding down the carpets. It melts and the carpets slip.

"Hindsight is wonderful," says project manager Lewis.

"We should have had ventilation in the stairwells. We thought enough air would get in just from the natural opening and shutting of doors."

Now the contractors are back — tacking down the carpet to wood strips.

Then there is the problem of the stained carpets.

In the companies department search office, and other areas, there are large black stains rubbed into the carpet. They appeared during construction and they won't go away. The carpets had to be put in before the partitions so that the partitions could later be moved.

"We've tried just about everything to get the stains out. In the worst areas, the carpet may just have to be replaced," says Lewis.

The contractor will bear the cost.

And there was a problem with the air-conditioning.

"We spent a lot of time and money balancing the system. It's very complex," says Lewis.

It was designed to conserve energy, not to adhere rigorously to one temperature. They hope that problem is now under control.

It's nice place to work — employees

Despite the minor bugs, the building seems to be a success.

Lewis said it came in under budget due to an overestimate of costs when the contracts were let. It was the time of the last oil crisis and rapidly escalating construction costs.

The original budget for construction alone was $17.7 million. The cost in the end was $15.8 million. The total cost including land assembly and interest was $25 million, still under the original budgeted $26 million.

And it is a nice place to work, according to a random survey of the 850 government employees.

They like the space — it was designed on the open office concept — and the fact the minions, not the bigshots, get the windows. They like being out of the dingy older buildings.

A lawyer who uses the companies branch search office says the staff is more cheerful since moving out of the old basement office.

There is a large courtyard on the Blanshard Street side and another courtyard and garden on the roof, which is accessible from the street.

And there is that sculpture.

Flight? A bird? A new nuclear weapon?

At the very least, it is evocative, as all good works of art should be.

Strike talk cuts visitors

Victoria's tourist business has dropped 30 per cent since workers on B.C. Ferries threatened to strike, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce was told Wednesday.

Ed Higgin, president of Victoria Visitors Information Centre, said the threat has taken a severe toll.

He said many businesses are reporting revenues down 30 per cent from the same period in 1978.

The drop began with the first indication by the workers they were considering strike action.

Until then it appeared Victoria was heading for tourist revenues of $250 million this year, up 25 per cent from $200 million in 1978, he said.

Concerns about gas shortages have also been a problem.

The recent decline has been the only black mark on an otherwise superlative tourist season, he told chamber directors at a meeting at the Strathcona Hotel.

Revenues could be even higher next year, with proper planning.

To prepare for next year, he said, a tourist seminar will be held in November. It will be one of the first functions held in the renovated old Crystal Garden building.

The seminar will discuss tourist ideas and, possibly, result in a reorganization of the VIC.

VIC revenues are not meeting requirements, he said.

The centre received $190,000 this year, $150,000 from its 550 members plus $40,000 from local municipalities.

Higgin said the municipal share should be at least equal to the funds raised by members.

But there was little hope of getting additional funds from municipalities so a membership drive will be launched. The goal will be 500 new members to put the total over 1,000.

Higgin said the tourist seminar might decide a new committee or task force should be formed to organize and control tourism for Victoria. The VIC would continue to serve its present functions.

Sidney to clear walks

He said there is a bylaw prohibiting the display of wares on sidewalks.

Municipal administrator Geoffrey Logan said Wednesday pedestrians have complained that merchandise displays outside shops are blocking sidewalks.

"It is of some concern because it could cause a serious accident," he said.

"There is angle parking on the main shopping street and a person forced to step off the sidewalk because of an obstruction could be hit by a car."

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me the population of British Columbia? K.A.

A. The provincial vital statistics branch says the population on June 1, 1978, was 2,535,200. This is the most recent count.

City strike threat by electrical crews

A walkout could close city hall, and lead to traffic and street-lighting problems as well as interfere with next week's Mann Cup lacrosse final.

The 15 employees, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 230, are in a legal position to walk off the job.

IBEW business representative Jack Zettler says the union is still discussing strategy and the walkout will not come today.

Negotiations with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association have been going on for more than eight months, assisted in the later stages by mediator Clark Gilmour.

However, an impasse was reached Monday and Gilmour was asked to withdraw. He has done so and filed his report with Labor Minister Allan Williams, clearing the way for a strike.

Those involved are communications technicians, electricians, linemen, truck drivers as well as maintenance people who take care of Memorial Arena where the best-of-seven Mann Cup final opens Tuesday.

Victoria Shamrocks, Western Lacrosse Association champs, are to meet the winners of the eastern final now being played between Peterborough Red Oaks and Brampton Excelsiors.

The electrical workers are responsible for city street lights and traffic signals, the communication systems for the fire and police departments and the downtown coin-operated carparks.

All city services, including garbage and street cleaning, could be affected by a strike as city inside and outside workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, have given the IBEW a promise that their members will not cross picket lines.

"We have to do something, they have backed us into a corner," Zettler said.

He said the only issue is the time lag before the employees get their increased salary.

Under the current system, the city electrical workers get parity with B.C. Hydro workers represented by the IBEW. However, there is a nine-month wait before the Victoria workers get the Hydro increase.

Retroactive to Jan. 1 they have been offered the four per cent Hydro employees won in April, 1978, plus whatever is negotiated oyer and above that during the Hydro negotiations.

However, Zettler said it will take nine months after the Hydro workers get this year's raise before the Victoria workers get anything over four per cent.

The Victoria workers want instant parity. When Hydro employees get their raise, then the city electrical workers should go to that level, he said.

Zettler said a six-month gap was negotiated into the contract 12 or 15 years ago and another three months added due to some adjustment made during the days of the federal anti-inflation program.

He said Victoria police and firemen get instant parity with their Vancouver counterparts so there is no reason the electrical employees can't be treated in the same way.

Colwood RCMP are seeking a knife-wielding bandit who held up the attendant at the Pay-Less gas station at Admirals and Craigflower Wednesday night and made off with $118.

The attendant, whose name was not released, was not hurt in the robbery which occurred at 8:35 p.m.

Police said the bandit, described as dark-skinned with shoulder length black hair, made his getaway on a small motorcycle.

'I tried to stick it out' says addict

Gutierrez told the judge she didn't want to return to Brannen Lake because the initial experience, which began in June, was frustrating and the facility seemed unorganized.

She said she had been beaten up and spat upon by others taking the heroin treatment program.

"Honest to God," she said, "I tried to stick it out up there. The things that I saw, I don't want to see."

She told of sitting in her room all day, writing in a log, and of seeing a psychologist only once while she was there.

Ostler said the Brannen Lake program is just in its infancy and he wasn't surprised she didn't like the atmosphere.

"You can't write your own ticket, you know," he said, referring to Gutierrez' suggestion that she go to psychiatrists and psychologists in Victoria. "If you go on like this, you'll kill yourself."

Ostler said there was good reason to send Gutierrez to jail because she attempted to commit fraud while on probation for another conviction.

The judge imposed a suspended sentence and placed her on two years probation. Conditions of her probation include residing where her probation officer directed, taking psychological and drug counselling as directed, and submitting to urinalysis.

Gutierrez had pleaded guilty Aug. 15 to attempted fraud in connection with a false prescription order June 17 at the Shoppers Drug Mart at Town and Country shopping centre.

Crown counsel Richard Law said that earlier this month a woman phoned the pharmacy about 2:15 p.m., identified herself as a doctor, and ordered a prescription of 50 tablets.

Shortly before 6 p.m., Gutierrez walked into the store and attempted to claim the prescription. When refused, she fled but was stopped by Saanich police in her vehicle on Blanshard.

Postal Crown corporation aim of information pickets

Inside postal workers tried to make their case to the public Wednesday when they set up informational pickets at several postal terminals across western Canada.

The largest turnout was in Winnipeg where 50 off-duty postal workers were at the main post office to explain to the public why they want the post office turned into a Crown corporation.

Ed Langelier, technical adviser for the western Canadian wing of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the pickets were part of a drive to bring government attention to union demands:

Postal officials said normal postal functions would not be disrupted by the pickets.

Shawnigan parents get bus meeting

Education ministry officials have agreed to meet Shawnigan Lake area parents to discuss school transportation for children.

In return, the council will give share certificates acknowledging that the recipient has donated BCRIC shares to the council to help it in its educational campaigns.

The share for share scheme is part of the council's current fund-raising drive to support its educational messages about the environment and energy conservation.

Publicity and education officer Marcus Davies said the council, because of the success of its first recycling book with teachers, wants to produce a second book, specifically for junior high school teachers.

The council's general program is to make the public more aware of the need for recycling and energy conservation.

Shrinking

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government workforce shrunk by 3,699 during the year ending June 30, Statistics Canada said Tuesday.

There were 592,947 employees (including the armed forces) at the end of June.

Hydro awards cable contract

A joint contract for $200 million (U.S.) to supply and install 525-kilovolt underwater power cables between Vancouver Island and the mainland has been received by a Norwegian subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. of Toronto and an Italian cable company.

B.C. Hydro awarded the joint contract.

Standard Telefon Og Kabelfabrik, the ITT subsidiary, will make half the necessary power cables in Oslo, Norway. The rest will be manufactured by Industrie Pirelli S.p.A., in Italy.

The underwater circuit will extend across the straits of Malaspina and Georgia with overhead sections crossing Texada Island.

Sydney getting back courtroom facilities

B.C. Development Corporation architects are expected at Sidney muncipal hall next week to draw up plans for construction of courtroom facilities.

It will end the expensive system of having all cases from the northern half of the Saanich Peninsula heard in Victoria courts.

Sidney once operated its own court but in 1975 the provincial government decided all legal proceedings originating in Sidney and the surrounding area were to be heard by Victoria courts.

The move was opposed by police, social workers and Sidney council.

Matheson Lake . . . Metchosin's precious jewel

Walk of the Week

Magic quality found at Matheson Lake

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

His host thought it would be just the right touch to round out his visit to the West Coast.

It worked.

It is this quality that makes the park so popular in the spring, fall and winter.

In summer, the lake rings to the voices of bathers splashing in the clear water or sunning themselves along the shore and on an idyllic small island.

But come the summer evening, it reverts to its still beauty — the magic restored.

On the south side of the lake is 700-foot Mount Matheson, on the north the Canadian National Railway right-of-way which many people hope will become a bikeway. If it does, it will certainly become one of the most popular areas for cyclists.

The 401-acre park, established in 1956, offers walkers a trail which circles the lake. It passes through some fine timber, skirts a bay and crosses a few small creeks.

You can extend your walk by going to attractive Roche Cove which forms part of Sooke Basin.

To get there take a trail on the right side of the lake's outlet, follow the creek which eventually takes you to a logging road. Five minutes walk takes you to a ribbon trail going back to the creek and to the cove. In all it's about a half-hour walk.

The park has some interesting plants, including Little Princess Pine and Pipsissewa, delicate woodland flowers. Few people notice them growing in dry areas under fir trees. Trout and bass are also found in the lake.

The park is 45 minutes from downtown Victoria, a short distance from Pedder Bay Road.

Travel via Metchosin Road, west on Happpy Valley Road and then south on Rocky Point Road.

Spruce-up plan launched

A program to spruce up the exteriors of heritage structures is open for applications, Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said Wednesday.

The Heritage Area Revitilization scheme is intended to encourage the restoration of exterior areas as opposed to the Heritage Trust program which is aimed at the preservation of buildings.

The new program will provide assistance to municipalities for the preservation of building facades, signs and what the trust calls "streetscapes."

Municipalities receiving heritage area grants will be able to spread the work over several years. The Heritage Trust will determine if assistance for successful applicants will be in the form of technical help or funding.

"This should provide communities with the incentive to salvage suitable areas for preservation and help to keep our rapidly accelerating present and future visually in touch with our colorful past," said Curtis.

Before the judge

Consuming alcohol and aging have a lot in common, Judge William Ostler told an 18-year-old in provincial court Wednesday.

Timothy Barron, 135 Gorge Road East, vented his feelings about the legal drinking age in B.C. after pleading guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor.

Barron was stopped in a vehicle on Princess shortly before midnight June 8 and admitted ownership of some wine and rum.

When the judge asked him if he had anything to say, Barron began by noting that persons 16 years of age were given the biggest responsibility of all, the right to drive a vehicle.

Not only that, Barron continued, at 18 he was allowed to vote federally.

Why then, he asked rhetorically, couldn't persons under 19 possess alcohol?

Ostler explained that the legislators of the country, in their wisdom, decided that at 16, persons were able to accept the responsibility of driving and, at 18, were mature enough to exercise the right to vote. He said the same legislators decided that those 19 years of age or more would be able to handle drinking.

With a slight trace of a smile, the judge added: "I don't know why you're so all-fired in a hurry to start drinking liquor at your age. When you get old, like some of us, you may need a drink now and then to keep going."

A 58-year-old man who told Victoria police he wanted 30 or 60 days in jail to "dry out" got his wish.

John Campbell Inglis, 711 Johnson, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk Tuesday afternoon on Douglas.

Court was informed Inglis was sitting on the front steps of the Bank of Commerce shortly before 4 p.m., bothering passers-by.

In court, Inglis told the judge he wanted treatment for his alcoholism but the three-day program at the detoxification centre was not enough.

Inglis said he had been able to abstain from alcohol for two years in Eastern Canada but wasn't able to do so here, blaming it on the "air or something."

Ostler said the air here should be intoxicating enough by itself before he imposed a 30-day sentence.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Lonnie Leon MacLean, 24, of 2930 Qu'Appelle, $500; Barrie Lloyd Kirkland, 32, of 326 Zealous, $500; Donna Susan Lowry, 24, of 2974 Pickford, $400; David Newell, 33, of 314 Zealous, $400; and John Reid, 60, of 2511 Dowler, $350.

In addition, Lowry was fined $150 for leaving the scene of an accident.

'If the piece doesn't speak for itself, there is no use me talking about it'

The $60,000 swizzle stick

By JANE COVERNTON
Times Staff

What is it?

"A refugee from Cape Canaveral," said one passer-by.

"Something to do with solar heating."

Hardly a person passing by the sculpture in the courtyard of the new $25 million provincial government building at 940 Broughton fails to look up — and comment — on the fanned-out wings of steel.

"I don't know. I just hope it doesn't make a noise."

"A tree, I say a tree."

Says its creator George Norris of Vancouver: "If the piece doesn't speak for itself, there's no use me talking about it."

Norris, who was born in Victoria, is spending his days at the Waddington Building — named after Alfred Waddington, a 19th century Victoria entrepreneur and writer — putting the finishing touches on the sculpture, which he refuses to name.

"It's similar to music or poetry. A name limits it to some kind of prosaic statement. Actually many people have caught on to some of the original ideas, even in the smart alec comments."

Sculptor Norris, left, on the job

Norris has been working on the sculpture for a couple of years, designing, modelling, casting, forming, and welding.

He was commissioned — for $60,000 — on the recomendation of the Provincial Art Committee, set up by the former NDP government.

Norris is reluctant to talk about money. He thinks money shouldn't be linked to art.

But building project manager Mack Lewis thinks the taxpayer got a bargain and Norris will be lucky if he makes $1.25 an hour for the time he's put in.

Norris has had lots of experience at this type of thing. He's been doing architectural sculpture for 20 years. One of his pieces, The Crab, graces the front of the MacMillan Planetarium in Vancouver.

When the Waddington Building sculpture — untitled — is finished, it will rotate slowly. It has a slip clutch, a reduction gear, and a magic electronic box.

Passers-by will be able to switch it on. It will spin for a while, and then gradually come to a stop.

"I wanted it to be extremely slow, almost floating, so as not to be an irritant," said Norris. "It will turn in an almost random way, just when people walk by. I hope that keeps it from being too mechanical."

There is one slight problem.

When the thing rotates, the curving steel blades catch the light of the sun and throw it into the eyes of captive office workers in the third and fourth floors.

They've had to put long strips of paper across the tops of the windows facing the sculpture. The brown paper looks odd on the elegant new building.

He doesn't take their problems too seriously.

The eye-blinking caused by the sculpture is just one of a number of problems that have bedevilled the workers in the new building since they moved in about a year ago.

'Hindsight is wonderful' — manager

"Stairway Closed Due to Carpet Problems" the signs say.

The stairways are ultra-modern glass structures on the outside of the building. The sun beats into the stairwells and heats up the adhesive holding down the carpets. It melts and the carpets slip.

"Hindsight is wonderful," says project manager Lewis.

"We should have had ventilation in the stairwells. We thought enough air would get in just from the natural opening and shutting of doors."

Now the contractors are back — tacking down the carpet to wood strips.

Then there is the problem of the stained carpets.

In the companies department search office, and other areas, there are large black stains rubbed into the carpet. They appeared during construction and they won't go away. The carpets had to be put in before the partitions so that the partitions could later be moved.

"We've tried just about everything to get the stains out. In the worst areas, the carpet may just have to be replaced," says Lewis.

The contractor will bear the cost.

And there was a problem with the air-conditioning.

"We spent a lot of time and money balancing the system. It's very complex," says Lewis.

It was designed to conserve energy, not to adhere rigorously to one temperature. They hope that problem is now under control.

It's nice place to work — employees

Despite the minor bugs, the building seems to be a success.

Lewis said it came in under budget due to an overestimate of costs when the contracts were let. It was the time of the last oil crisis and rapidly escalating construction costs.

The original budget for construction alone was $17.7 million. The cost in the end was $15.8 million. The total cost including land assembly and interest was $25 million, still under the original budgeted $26 million.

And it is a nice place to work, according to a random survey of the 850 government employees.

They like the space — it was designed on the open office concept — and the fact the minions, not the bigshots, get the windows. They like being out of the dingy older buildings.

A lawyer who uses the companies branch search office says the staff is more cheerful since moving out of the old basement office.

There is a large courtyard on the Blanshard Street side and another courtyard and garden on the roof, which is accessible from the street.

And there is that sculpture.

Flight? A bird? A new nuclear weapon?

At the very least, it is evocative, as all good works of art should be.

Strike talk cuts visitors

Victoria's tourist business has dropped 30 per cent since workers on B.C. Ferries threatened to strike, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce was told Wednesday.

Ed Higgin, president of Victoria Visitors Information Centre, said the threat has taken a severe toll.

He said many businesses are reporting revenues down 30 per cent from the same period in 1978.

The drop began with the first indication by the workers they were considering strike action.

Until then it appeared Victoria was heading for tourist revenues of $250 million this year, up 25 per cent from $200 million in 1978, he said.

Concerns about gas shortages have also been a problem.

The recent decline has been the only black mark on an otherwise superlative tourist season, he told chamber directors at a meeting at the Strathcona Hotel.

Revenues could be even higher next year, with proper planning.

To prepare for next year, he said, a tourist seminar will be held in November. It will be one of the first functions held in the renovated old Crystal Garden building.

The seminar will discuss tourist ideas and, possibly, result in a reorganization of the VIC.

VIC revenues are not meeting requirements, he said.

The centre received $190,000 this year, $150,000 from its 550 members plus $40,000 from local municipalities.

Higgin said the municipal share should be at least equal to the funds raised by members.

But there was little hope of getting additional funds from municipalities so a membership drive will be launched. The goal will be 500 new members to put the total over 1,000.

Higgin said the tourist seminar might decide a new committee or task force should be formed to organize and control tourism for Victoria. The VIC would continue to serve its present functions.

Sidney to clear walks

He said there is a bylaw prohibiting the display of wares on sidewalks.

Municipal administrator Geoffrey Logan said Wednesday pedestrians have complained that merchandise displays outside shops are blocking sidewalks.

"It is of some concern because it could cause a serious accident," he said.

"There is angle parking on the main shopping street and a person forced to step off the sidewalk because of an obstruction could be hit by a car."

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me the population of British Columbia? K.A.

A. The provincial vital statistics branch says the population on June 1, 1978, was 2,535,200. This is the most recent count.

City strike threat by electrical crews

A walkout could close city hall, and lead to traffic and street-lighting problems as well as interfere with next week's Mann Cup lacrosse final.

The 15 employees, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 230, are in a legal position to walk off the job.

IBEW business representative Jack Zettler says the union is still discussing strategy and the walkout will not come today.

Negotiations with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association have been going on for more than eight months, assisted in the later stages by mediator Clark Gilmour.

However, an impasse was reached Monday and Gilmour was asked to withdraw. He has done so and filed his report with Labor Minister Allan Williams, clearing the way for a strike.

Those involved are communications technicians, electricians, linemen, truck drivers as well as maintenance people who take care of Memorial Arena where the best-of-seven Mann Cup final opens Tuesday.

Victoria Shamrocks, Western Lacrosse Association champs, are to meet the winners of the eastern final now being played between Peterborough Red Oaks and Brampton Excelsiors.

The electrical workers are responsible for city street lights and traffic signals, the communication systems for the fire and police departments and the downtown coin-operated carparks.

All city services, including garbage and street cleaning, could be affected by a strike as city inside and outside workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, have given the IBEW a promise that their members will not cross picket lines.

"We have to do something, they have backed us into a corner," Zettler said.

He said the only issue is the time lag before the employees get their increased salary.

Under the current system, the city electrical workers get parity with B.C. Hydro workers represented by the IBEW. However, there is a nine-month wait before the Victoria workers get the Hydro increase.

Retroactive to Jan. 1 they have been offered the four per cent Hydro employees won in April, 1978, plus whatever is negotiated over and above that during the Hydro negotiations.

However, Zettler said it will take nine months after the Hydro workers get this year's raise before the Victoria workers get anything over four per cent.

The Victoria workers want instant parity. When Hydro employees get their raise, then the city electrical workers should go to that level, he said.

Zettler said a six-month gap was negotiated into the contract 12 or 15 years ago and another three months added due to some adjustment made during the days of the federal anti-inflation program.

He said Victoria police and firemen get instant parity with their Vancouver counterparts so there is no reason the electrical employees can't be treated in the same way.

'I tried to stick it out' says addict

A 24-year-old woman addict who quit after six weeks of voluntary treatment for addiction to prescription drugs at the Brannen Lake centre was told in Victoria provincial court Wednesday to go back and try harder.

Gutierrez told the judge she didn't want to return to Brannen Lake because the initial experience, which began in June, was frustrating and the facility seemed unorganized.

She said she had been beaten up and spat upon by others taking the treatment program.

"Honest to God," she said, "I tried to stick it out up there. The things that I saw, I don't want to see."

She told of sitting in her room all day, writing in a log, and of seeing a psychologist only once while she was there.

Ostler said the Brannen Lake program is just in its infancy and he wasn't surprised she didn't like the atmosphere.

"You can't write your own ticket, you know," he said, referring to Gutierrez' suggestion that she go to psychiatrists and psychologists in Victoria. "If you go on like this, you'll kill yourself."

Ostler said there was good reason to send Gutierrez to jail because she attempted to commit fraud while on probation for another conviction.

The judge imposed a suspended sentence and placed her on two years probation. Conditions of her probation include residing where her probation officer directed, taking psychological and drug counselling as directed, and submitting to urinalysis.

Gutierrez had pleaded guilty Aug. 15 to attempted fraud in connection with a false prescription order June 17 at the Shoppers Drug Mart at Town and Country shopping centre.

Crown counsel Richard Law said that earlier this month a woman phoned the pharmacy about 2:15 p.m., identified herself as a doctor, and ordered a prescription of 50 tablets.

Shortly before 6 p.m., Gutierrez walked into the store and attempted to claim the prescription. When refused, she fled but was stopped by Saanich police in her vehicle on Blanshard.

Colwood RCMP are seeking a knife-wielding bandit who held up the attendant at the Pay-Less gas station at Admirals and Craigflower Wednesday night and made off with $118.

The attendant, whose name was not released, was not hurt in the robbery which occurred at 8:35 p.m.
